DEEP MYSTERY IN THE OELRICHS JEWEL THEFT

COPYRIGHT PHOTO. BY AIME DUPONT

MRS. CHARLES M. OELRICHS.

SOCIETY WOMAN, WHOSE JEWELS WERE STOLEN.

$500 REWARD

OFFERED BY CHARLES M. OELRICHS FOR NEWPORT SOCIETY "RAFFLES"

Value of Stolen Gems Now Said to Be Only About $3,000, but Was Originally Given as Above $10,000—Circumstances Indicate Work Was Not That of a Professional.

Special to The Boston American.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Charles M. Oelrichs to-day offered a reward of $500 for the jewels which were stolen from the Oelrichs's villa. Now the police have a theory that the gems were appropriated by a society "Raffles." Meanwhile the mystery which has surrounded the entire affair from the beginning stubbornly refuses to be cleared up.

It is pointed out that persons of social eminence would have had opportunity to take the jewels. Certainly there is not the mark of the professional thief in the job. One evidence of this, and the most convincing, is that a $500 diamond ring was left displayed in the casket from which the other jewels were taken.

LIST OF JEWELS STOLEN FROM MRS. OELRICHS

Turquoise gold chain, one and one-half yards long, value $250, with small gold watch, open face, Tiffany, diamond crown on back, value $350, and heart-shaped locket attached.

One turquoise bracelet, inch wide, large stones, value $250.

One turquoise bracelet, inch wide, small stones, value $150.

One turquoise and pearl gold chain bracelet.

One gold chain bracelet, with clover leaves of diamonds on chain and diamond heart attached.

One heart-shaped diamond pin, value $100.

One diamond bar pin, value $100.

One pin with diamond letters "F. M." red enamel, with Austrian crown on top, in diamonds.

Gold snuff box with six diamonds on sides and blue enamel on top, value $400.

Gold open face watch, plain face, monogram "B. M. O.," value $75.

Two bracelets with five gold hearts and three diamonds on them and pink enamel heart on the bracelets, value $200.

One diamond dagger with pearl on top, value $200.

One large turquoise and diamond ring, value $300.

One emerald pendant with diamond on top, value $600.

One row of pearls with big diamond clasp, value $150.

One rosary of garnets, with cross.

One diamond pin, crown shaped, value $300.

Mr. Oelrichs to-day, on his return from New York, made his first statement regarding the affair to a reporter for the BOSTON AMERICAN. He said:

PLENTY OF OPPORTUNITY.

"All I can do in this matter is to offer a reward. Mrs. Oelrichs and I are agreed that we will offer a reward of $500 for the return of the jewels, which are worth not quite $3,000.

"Many of the articles taken cannot be replaced. That is the reason why we value them so highly.

"There was plenty of opportunity for a thief to enter the house. There is nothing new as yet in the case to-day."

To one of the detectives who is investigating the case Mrs. Oelrichs has [illegible]:

"It seems that the newspapers regard me as pretty rich in jewelry. They placed the value of the stolen jewelry at between $10,000 and $15,000. As a matter of fact it is much less."

"Will there be any arrest in this case?" a reporter asked Chief of Police Crowley to-day.

"Tell your paper that there is likely to be an arrest at any minute," said the Chief, and he laughed enigmatically. Further he would say nothing. Detective McManus, who has had direct charge of the investigation, had little to say to-day. He believes, however, that a person of social importance is responsible for the theft. Who he will not even intimate.

"No clues" is the only report that the members of the Newport police force have made to Chief Crowley so far. Several circumstances connected with the case make it one of the most baffling the police ever have had to handle.

One strange fact is that when the robbery was first reported to the police by Mrs. Oelrichs she placed a value of $10,000 on the missing jewels. Now, it is said they are worth not more than $3,000, or possibly not so much.

A paste duplicate of Mrs. Oelrichs's famous $75,000 dog collar, which is of such good workmanship to deceive even experts except on close examination, was untouched by the thief.

THINKS SERVANTS INNOCENT.

The butler and the two women servants who were in the house when the robbery was committed, have been closely questioned by Chief of Detectives McManus and all three gave good accounts of themselves. Mrs. Oelrichs positively refuses to allow any of her servants to be arrested, declaring that she knows none of them is guilty.

Detective McManus, who has charge of the case, said to a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter:

"I have my own ideas as to the robbery, but am not ready to make any public statement as yet. I am ready to act on my convictions whenever ordered to do so."

NOT PROFESSIONAL WORK.

"I questioned the servants closely, and their statements seem to exonerate them.

SIX DEAD IN 24 HOURS FROM TERRIFIC HEAT; BUT LITTLE RELIEF

EDWARD FLYNN OF ROXBURY, FOUND DEAD, OLD SOL'S LATEST VICTIM.

Only the fact that the humidity to-day is sixteen degrees lower than it was yesterday saves the city from far greater suffering than on any day since the heat wave struck New England on Saturday.

The thermometer is higher to-day than it was yesterday by several degrees. There is a brisk Southwest wind which, however, brings little relief with it.

Up to 10 o'clock to-day one death had been reported. Edward Flynn, a plasterer, was found dead in his shop at No. 32 Ruggles street, Roxbury. When his employes left him last night he complained of the heat and said he had suffered all day.

When his shop was opened to-day he was found dead on the floor. He was 58 years of age and lived at No. 117 Huntington avenue.

His death makes six that have occurred in the last 24 hours from the terrible heat. The other deaths reported are:

Captain Edward J. Tutein of Revere, one of the best known truckmen in Boston; James Blinn of No. 94 East Brookline street; John Sullivan, also known as Matthew Allen, and supposed to be a member of the Firemen's Union; Samuel Cutler of Somerville, a member of the cotton firm of Hill & Cutler, No. 567-569 Atlantic avenue, and Joseph Morjinsky of No. 54 Rogers street, South Boston.

Ten Serious Prostrations.

The prostrations reported in Boston and other cities in New England have reached ten serious cases, with many more cases of slight prostration. Of the former, two men were overcome while at work on stagings, one falling thirty feet, and the other fifteen feet. Several were stricken on the street, without warning, receiving minor injuries in their falls.

Of those whose injuries are due to heat prostration, the most remarkable escape is that of Randolph G. Lord, of East Boston. He was at work on a staging at Mystic Wharf, Charlestown, and when overcome fell a distance of thirty feet, receiving multiple injuries. Albert Anderson, a roofer, living at No. 57½ Tremont street, Cambridge, fell from a staging at No. 283 Shawmut avenue, a distance of thirty feet, breaking his back. He is at the City Hospital and probably will die.

Humidity Was 86.

With two exceptions, Boston was again the hottest place in the United States yesterday. The temperature here registered 91 degrees officially, but many unofficial thermometers registered much higher. Albany, N. Y., had a record of 92 degrees, and a small signal station in Texas reported 98.

But Boston was in a far worse condition than either of these places because of the extreme humidity, which reached 86, a dozen points higher than normal.

The real hot wave came in during the afternoon and struck the city very suddenly. The east wind changed to west and in less than two hours the temperature had risen 15 degrees. At 3 p. m. it reached the highest point, 91 degrees. It

WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN BED; HUSBAND HELD

BODY OF MRS. HARRIET A. GREEN WAS BADLY BRUISED AND AUTOPSY WILL BE HELD.

Mrs. Harriet A. Green of No. 1475 Washington street, was found dead in bed in her room to-day, with her body covered with bruises and marks such as might have resulted from a beating. Her husband, Francis P. Green, reported the finding of the body. He is now detained by Captain O'Lalor until the medical examiner can look at the body.

This afternoon there probably will be an autopsy held at Briggs' Howard Street Morgue. The body has been removed there. There is a possibility that the woman may have died from a self-administered drug, but the case will be investigated fully.

The husband was very much surprised at his detention. He says his wife was about thirty-nine years old, and declares he can not account for her death.

Denying Responsibility for $250,000 Deal

DEPEW EXPLAINS LOAN

Says It Was Made to Depew Improvement Co., and He Had Nothing to Do With It.

PARIS, July 13.— Senator Chauncey M. Depew, who is in Paris, and who is said to have resigned from the directorate of the Equitable, says the reports of his "land deal" with the Equitable are greatly exaggerated.

"The reports," said the Senator, "refer to the Depew Improvement Company, which was given my name without my being consulted. The head of the company was Dr. Seward Webb, through whom I became a member after the enterprise had become flourishing, with a settlement near Buffalo, in connection with five trunk lines.

"The Depew Improvement Company was entirely without connection with the Equitable Life Assurance Society. The Equitable asked for no guarantee, verbal or otherwise, in connection with the loan of $250,000 made to the company. The transaction occurred several years ago, before the company got into trouble.

Loan Was Regular.

"Interest on the loan was regularly paid. The application for the loan, so far as I know, was made to the Equitable Society by the officers of the Improvement Company. The Equitable appraisers and officers, charged with looking after loans and real estate, appraised the estate at the usual valuation above the amount loaned, as prescribed by the rules of the company.

The property was recently valued at $200,000 above liabilities, and others valued it at $1,500,000 above all liabilities.

"By any proper administration of the property there can be no loss to the Equitable or any other creditor. There are between one hundred and two hundred stockholders in the improvement company I am informed.

"Much of the stock was held abroad. Thus when more funds were necessary it was impossible to secure the co-operation of the widely scattered foreign stockholders, though several members of the company, myself for one, were willing to agree to any scheme to restore the enterprise to a profitable basis."

Age Caused Resignation.

Mr. Depew says the reports that he is to be ousted from the Equitable are ridiculous.

"I have never heard a word of this matter, directly or indirectly, from the Equitable," he went on, "since I placed my resignation in the hands of Paul Morton just before I came abroad. I resigned because I am nearly seventy-three. I have surrendered other retainers and I had decided to surrender this before my next birthday. I am reducing my business obligations, which have so accumulated as to leave me no leisure for that repose which belongs to a man of seventy-two, no matter how vigorous he may be."

RYAN'S FINANCIAL JUGGLING MAKES WALL STREET STARE

Is No Longer Paid by Equitable and Is Said to Have Resigned as Director.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Thomas F. Ryan within a short time will be paid $2,500,000 for the stock he purchased from James Hazen Hyde and, through his trustees, will still control the Equitable Society without having expended a dollar in acquiring the use and service of the millions of that concern.

When he has completed this wonderful financial deal, he will have established his reputation for all time as the most marvellous juggler of millions in Wall street.

He will then control the Equitable Life Assurance Society, Washington Life Insurance Company, and the National Bank of Commerce without having actually paid out a dollar for any one of these properties. Besides this he controls also the Mutual Life Insurance Company, giving him three life insurance companies with their enormous aggregate capital to manipulate as he will.

Ryan Makes Statement.

Stung by the revelations concerning his method of securing control of the Washington Life Insurance Company, Mr. Ryan broke the reserve he has always maintained and made a public statement, defending his course in that affair. In his statement he said:

"The reports of my connection with the Washington Life Insurance Company are inaccurate. When the company was on the verge of bankruptcy last December, from mismanagement, I joined Governor Morton and others in subscribing the neces-

DEATH VALLEY CROESUS GETS TWO BITTER DISAPPOINTMENTS

SCOTTY'S MESSAGE TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Following is the message Scotty sent to the President from Newton Kas.:

THEODORE ROOSEVELT,
President of the United States, Washington, D. C.:
An American cowboy is coming East on special train faster than any cow puncher ever rode before. How much shall I break trans-continental record?
WALTER SCOTT.

Railroads Refuse Him a Thirteen-Hour Train from Chicago to New York.

French Steamship Line Can't Give Him a Record Voyage to Havre for $100,000.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, July 13.—Walter Scott, the "Death Valley Croesus," spent the early part of to-day preparing for the last lap of his transcontinental race. His preparations were simple, consisting chiefly of putting in a large assortment of miscellaneous drinks where they would afford him the greatest degree of satisfaction.

He will leave Chicago at 5 o'clock this afternoon on the Michigan Central Limited, stopping off a day and a night at Niagara Falls and taking a daylight New York Central train Saturday for New York. He and his wife and his "yaller" dog with the $1,000 collar will occupy a special car.

Wanted Thirteen-Hour Flyer.

In vain he pleaded with the railroads for a thirteen-hour train to New York. He offered $12,000, but could get no promise of speed better than eighteen hours. It was a crushing blow to him, and his expressed opinions of the traffic managers were wonderful word pictures.

Disappointed in this, he wired to the French Transatlantic Line, offering $100,000 to beat the record for him from New York to Havre as much as the Santa Fe beat it from Los Angeles to Chicago. The answer advised him that within a year a special steamer could be built for him to break the record. He has not ordered the steamer as yet.

"Scotty" received a gentle rebuff when he attempted to enter Powers Theatre with his party, while the second act of the play was in progress last evening. He had stopped in several places where liquids are served before arriving at the theatre and Mr. Powers was waiting for him at the door.

"You are too late to get the drift of the plot and I don't think that you would really enjoy it,' he said.

"I think that you would better visit the College Inn."

After some little persuasion "Scotty" consented and spent some time in the restaurant. A short time later an auto ride was proposed and a car was summoned. After going to the Great Northern for his wife, Scotty spent an hour "breaking Chicago records in South Side boulevards."

"It is all a mistake to say that I am down to my last $100 bill," said Scotty. "We have a little more left yet.

"My wife has got some of the coin left, too," said he, "come here and show them what you've got down in your stocking."

Mrs. Scott was not averse and exhibited a good sized lump which she declared to be a wad of bills.

Cabby's $100 Was Dollar Bill.

Nevertheless, Scotty's drive to the theatre early in the evening was a sore disappointment to Cabby Michael Doning. Against Doning's protests Scotty and five companions crowded into the vehicle. Arriving at Powers's, Scotty paid the driver $1, and refused to pay more, although the fare for six under the ordinance was $1.50.

The police told Doning they could do nothing unless he got a warrant for Scott. Doning returned to his stand, where other cab drivers crowded about him.

"Did you get $100?" asked one eagerly.

"There's the $100 I got," said Doning, displaying the $1. "You fellows can haul all the Scotts after this."

WAIT TILL "SCOTTY" THE SPENDER HITS WALL STREET

BY JAMES MONTAGUE.

*Oh! Young Walter Scott's coming out of the West,
With a billion simoleons tucked in his vest,
You can follow his trail o'er the billowy plain.
By the green-growing grass, where he sprinkled champagne,
And won't old New York get a stem-winding swat,
When it's echoes are wakened by young Walter Scott!*

*Oh! Young Walter Scott's coming hither to blow
A million or two of his easy-come dough.
He'll run down to Coney to take in the sights,
And if they don't please him he'll shoot out the lights,
Or buy the whole place with one bill, like as not,
He's a spender from Blowville, is young Walter Scott.*

*Oh! Young Walter Scott's going into the street
As a lambkin to gambol and frolic and bleat,
And the financial world all expectantly waits
Till he mixes with Morgan or Rogers or Gates,
For the pace that they set may perhaps prove too hot
For even a spender like young Walter Scott.*

*Oh! Young Walter Scott, when he's taking a chance
With the marvels of real old down eastern finance,
When he's bucked old Jim Keene in a flyer or two,
And gone down the line with the Standard Oil crew,
Will probably find that he's BROKE a whole lot,
'Twill be back to Death Valley for young Walter Scott.*

TO BURY PROFESSOR WOOD TO-MORROW

3 p. m.	91	6 a. m.	76
4 p. m.	90	7 a. m.	78
5 p. m.	83	8 a. m.	80

The hot wave was general over New England, New York and Eastern Pennsylvania, and at 8 o'clock last night all within that area was over 80 degrees. So long as the westerly winds continue with the conditions as they are at present out through the Middle West, this section of the country will have to suffer.

Temperature in places around Boston showed a general increase over yesterday at the same hours. The following were taken at 10 o'clock: Melrose, 88; Malden, 88; Medford, 84; Everett, 86; Wakefield, 89; Reading, 94; Stoneham, 90; Union square, Somerville, 85; Dudley Street Terminal Station, shade, 84, sun 92; Washington and Dedham streets, 94; Police Station 11, Dorchester, 89; Harvard square, 90; Brookline fire headquarters, 90; Brighton Police Station, 89; Watertown square, 92; Newton Corner, 90; Lynn, 87; Chelsea square, 94; Prattville square, Chelsea, 96.

BONAPARTE TO SPEND SUMMER IN LEE

REWARD IS OFFERED FOR JEWELRY THIEF CAPTURE

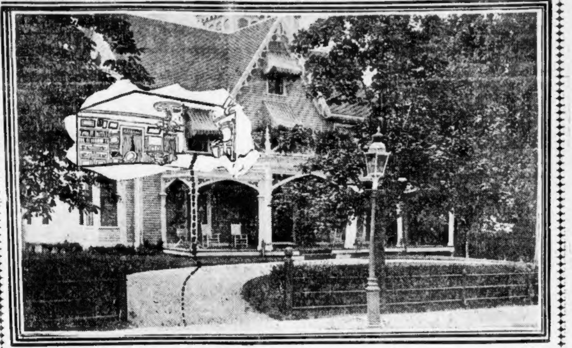

DIAGRAM SHOWING HOW HOUSE MIGHT HAVE BEEN ENTERED.

Society Raffles Is Thought to Be Guilty of the Oelrichs Robbery.

I find that silver medals, jeweled pins and combs and other trinkets were left by the thief, besides a $500 diamond ring. The imitation dog collar, also left behind, could not be told from the genuine article except by an expert on precious stones. Had it been genuine it would have been worth $75,000, and no professional thief would leave such a thing. He would take it along and take chances on its being valuable.

Chief of Police Crowley said:

"The robbery does not look to me like the work of professional thieves. When crooks are on a job they don't leave behind valuables that are in plain sight. We are making every effort to find the thief or thieves, and I think we will be able to clear up the mystery.

"I will not say what our theories are, but naturally we have some. The value of the jewels taken now figures up between $3,000 and $4,000. We feared that the loss was much larger.

"I have had circulars containing descriptions of the jewels sent to the police departments throughout this section of the country, and if any attempt is made to dispose of any of the stolen property we will know of it."

VALUABLE MEMENTOES GONE.

The robbery, according to Detective McManus, shows the lack of care used by Newport society women in guarding their valuables.

"In all my experience as a police officer," he said, "I have never seen such carelessness about homes where thousands of dollars worth of valuables are kept. Valuable property is left lying carelessly about and doors and windows are left wide open, really tempting people to steal. I noticed this when I first came to Newport."

Mrs. Oelrichs has recovered somewhat from the shock of losing her jewels and gave a dinner party last night, while the police watched outside the house.

Two articles of special value, largely because of their associations, that were stolen were an emerald pendant and a gold snuffbox. The snuffbox was a gift to Mrs. Oelrichs's father, Mr. De Loosy, a distinguished Hungarian, from the Emperor Maximilian of Mexico. Among the other property stolen was a chain of turquoises, given to Mrs. Oelrichs by Mrs. Eleanor Martin, mother of Peter D. Martin, who married Lily Oelrichs.

Suspicious Strangers.

The police are investigating the presence of suspicious strangers on Newport Island in the last week in connection with the Oelrichs robbery.

At the Portsmouth car barn during the latter part of last week two men attracted notice by reason of being strangers and because they shunned attention. Men about the barn remembered a similar performance in the vicinity preceding the great car barn robbery some years ago, and precautions were taken.

On Friday night Conductor George Thomas and a motorman arriving on the last car, instead of going home upon putting up their Providence and Bristol car, armed themselves and slept in the barn at the solicitation of those in charge, who feared that another attempt was to be made to blow the car barn safe or rob belated conductors. The guarding of the barn was done openly and the strangers were not thereafter seen. The Portsmouth car barn is situated toward the north end of the island of which Newport covers the southern point.

PLOT TO BLOW UP CZAR AND IMPERIAL FAMILY

LONDON, July 13.—A dispatch from Vienna to-day says:

"Private letters from St. Petersburg state that the police have discovered elaborate preparations for blowing up the castle of Illuskoje, near Moscow, where the Czar with the imperial family intended to take up a brief residence.

"Beneath the apartments destined for His Majesty's use a subterranean passage is said to have been found, leading to a cellar where 250 pounds of dynamite lay concealed.

"The police have made many arrests, arresting among others two engineers who conducted the cleaning and decorating of the apartments at the castle.

"This intelligence, associated with the murder of Shuvaloff, has made a deep impression.

"The Czar has not given up all idea of staying at Illuskoje."

BLACK SEA CHIEF TO BE DEGRADED FOR THE MUTINY

ST. PETERSBURG, July 13.—There is a growing belief here, shared in official circles, that Vice Admiral Kruger, who was in command of the Black Sea squadron which threatened mutiny if ordered to fire on the rebel battleship, Kniaz Potemkin, will be court-martialled and cashiered from the navy.

The government holds the Admiral responsible for the behavior of the crews of the fleet under him. No explanation he may give will be accepted.

WOMAN SHOT, STRAY BULLET, HUSBAND HELD

Wife Insists on Accident, but Police Hear Hints of Family Jar.

Wounded by a pistol shot in her arm, pretty Mrs. Mary M. Ward, twenty-seven years old, of No. 89 Burrell street, Roxbury, is in the City Hospital. Her husband, Justin F. Ward, is being detained at Dudley street police station, despite the womans statement that the bullet which wounded her flew through the open window to-day. She doesnt know what direction it came from.

Early to-day Ward rushed to the office of Dr. Sughrue, who is near the Ward home, and told excitedly that his wife had been shot. The physician immediately telephoned for the police. Now they say they have a witness who heard the words: "For God's sake don't tell anyone about this" come from the Ward rooms immediately after the shooting.

The condition of the wounded woman is not dangerous.

sary money to put the company in the strong financial position which it finds itself to-day. Its business is daily increasing, and the policy-holders are to be congratulated on Governor Morton's willingness, wholly from the sense of duty and in spite of his advanced age, to step in to prevent impending disaster to a company of which he was a charter member."

This statement deals with none of the essentials. It explains nothing. For the control of this company nothing was paid when all the circumstances are considered. The new issue of stock and enough of the old stock was purchased to give Mr. Ryan, with Levi P. Morton and Harry Payne Whitney, the control, but checks on the Morton Trust Company were given in payment, and these checks were at once deposited with the Morton Trust Company, which became the depository of all the funds of the Washington Life Insurance Company, including the $1,000,000 held in other banks throughout the city.

The manner in which the merger of the National Bank of Commerce and the Western National Bank was conducted shows the same high degree of skill. When the merger was completed Mr. Ryan had expended no part of his fortune, but the bank was his to control, and the fact that the Equitable Life Assurance Society had lost $4,000,000 in the transaction was hardly to be considered.

SWEEPING CUTS IN SALARIES ORDERED BY EQUITABLE HEAD

NEW YORK, July 13.—Paul Morton has begun reducing salaries in the Equitable. He issued an order that, beginning August 1, all salaries of more than $15,000 a year be cut 20 per cent.; all between $9,000 and $15,000, 15 per cent., and all between $2,500 and $9,000, 10 per cent.

There are five persons in the 20 per cent classification, whose salaries have been as follows: Vice-President Tarbell, $60,000; Vice-President Wilson, $30,000; Controller Jordan, $35,000; Secretary William Alexander, $25,000, and Actuary VanCiz $17,500.

In the 15 per cent. class are Cashier Murray, $15,000; Auditor Jackson, $12,000; Miss Amendt, assistant to Mr. Tarbell, $12,000; Assistant Actuary Main, $12,000, and Renewal Manager Brophy, $9,600.

Nine officials are in the 10 per cent. class.

These reductions will save about $100,000 a year, to which are added the $100,000 salaries of President Alexander and Vice-President Hyde and the $30,000 salary of Vice-President McIntyre, which have been cut off by resignations. Some very large salaries in the medical department are being adjusted.

"What is your salary, and is it affected by this reduction?" was asked of Mr. Morton.

"I have no salary," he replied. "It has not yet been fixed by the board of directors and is a matter for future adjustment."

BABY KICKED AND SCREAMED

Little One's Awful Suffering from Eczema—Could Not Hold Her—Tore Face and Arms Almost to Pieces—Grateful Mother Says:

"CUTICURA REMEDIES SAVED HER LIFE"

"When my little girl was six months old, she had eczema. We had used cold creams and all kinds of remedies, but nothing did her any good; in fact, she kept getting worse. I used to wrap her hands up, and when I would dress her I had to put her on the table, for I could not hold her. She would kick and scream, and when she could, she would tear her face and arms almost to pieces. I used four boxes of Cuticura Ointment, two cakes of Cuticura Soap, and gave her the Cuticura Resolvent, and she was cured, and I see no traces of the humor left. I can truthfully say that they have saved her life, and I should advise any one suffering as she did, to give Cuticura a fair trial. Mrs. G. A. Conrad, Lisbon, N. H., Feb. 7, 1898."

Five years later Mrs. Conrad writes: "It is with pleasure that I can inform you that the cure has been permanent. It is now six years since she was cured, and there has been no return of the disease since. I have advised a lot of friends to use Cuticura in all diseases of the skin."

ITCHING ECZEMA
And All Other Itching and Scaly Eruptions Cured by Cuticura.

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of scalp, as in scalled head; all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills are such, stands proven beyond all doubt.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for every Humor, from Pimples to Scrofula, from Infancy to Age, consisting of Cuticura Soap, 25c., Ointment, 50c., Resolvent, 50c. (in form of Chocolate Coated Pills, 25c. per vial of 60), may be had of all druggists. A single set often cures. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston.

TROPHY-HUNTING AUTOISTS OFF FOR PORTSMOUTH

Thirty-eight Contestants for Charles J. Glidden Cup Leave Hotel Lenox on Third Leg of 1,000-Mile Endurance and Speed Test.

The autoists in the thousand-mile run for the $2,000 Glidden trophy left Boston early to-day, and are enjoying a spin along the breeze-swept highways to Portsmouth, N. H., sixty-three miles away.

This is the third leg of the famous endurance and speed contest which is being made under direction of the American Automobile Association for the valuable trophy Charles J. Glidden, the "globe-trotting" autoist offers. It is considered an easy journey, compared with the 122-mile run from Hartford to Boston, or with the Portsmouth-Bretton Woods run, which the contestants will undertake.

All Started Early.

The first of the thirty-eight cars to get away to-day from the Hotel Lenox, where the contestants put up over night, was the fifteen-horse power White car, driven by George H. Tyrell of New York. It started at 6:05. At 6:07 Samuel B. Stevens of Rome, N. Y., followed in his big Darracq. The next early starters were E. H. Cutler of Springfield, president of the Knox Automobile Company, at 6:08; R. M. Owen of New York, in the sixteen-horse power Reo, at 6:45; Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Olds of Lansing, Mich., at 6:50; W. N. Epping of Pittsburg, in the fifteen-horse power White steamer, at 7:56; Mr. and Mrs. Ezra H. Fitch of Montclair, N. J., and five-year old Miss Edith Fitch, in the fifteen-horse power White steamer, at 7:56; J. D. Maxwell of Tarrytown, N. Y., in the eight-horse power Maxwell, at 8:06; "Pop" Temple of Pittsburg, the former baseball magnate, in the forty-horse power Great Pierce Arrow, at 8:06.

All these carried passengers. The other cars followed in short order and by ten o'clock the last one had left.

Posibly the most fascinating autoist is little Miss Fitch. She is only five years old, is the youngest in the party and rides by her father's side like a veteran motorist.

The contestants will take it easy today. They will stop at resorts along the route and have lunch, and will also have a swimming party.

Tourists Feared Constable.

Considerable apprehension was felt by members of the party when the rumor spread that a constable in Leicester had secured warrants for twenty-two of the contestants who overspeeded their machines through his town, the first west of Worcester. The police of Boston were not notified of the warrants, however, and the autoists got away without worrying over them.

The fastest time made during the run from Hartford to Boston was recorded by Walter C. White, in a fifteen horse-power White steamer. Mr. White covered the 122 miles between Hartford and Boston in four hours and forty minutes, or an average of twenty-five miles an hour over some very rough roads in the western part of the State. E. A. Gilmore, in a Rambler, made the distance in five hours and thirteen minutes.

Two big trucks, carrying the baggage of contestants, are making good records. They are a Knox and a Packard machine. The Knox is entered as a contestant, and made the distance of yesterday's run in seven hours and five minutes. The Packard also made good time.

Mrs. John Newton Cuneo of New York attracted considerable attention when she steered her White steamer up to the Lenox. She is the only woman driving an auto, and there are those in the party who think she stands a good chance of winning the trophy. She says she likes the country through which she has driven her auto, and save for the accident on the first day of the tour has enjoyed every minute of the trip.

All Machines Reach Boston.

She was in no hurry to leave Worcester, preferring a good dinner to trying to make time over the roads, and it was 5 o'clock before she registered at head quarters.

All of the machines that started the run from New York completed the trip to Boston and leave for Portsmouth to-day. Only two small accidents were met with during yesterday's run. Mr. Truesdale, guest of Jerome Edwards, was thrown from the Edwards cars in Springfield, but not seriously injured. Colonel Woods's Napier was disabled near Worcester by the breaking of a rod and had to be towed into Worcester.

President Lucius Tuttle of the Boston & Maine road has informed the managers of the tour that grade crossing tenders have been instructed to be particularly watchful for autos to-day and expressed the hope that the autoists would be careful in approaching grade crossings.

Glidden Calls Run Success

The run is a grand success. This one has not been conducted as a race would have been, but is a sort of a go-as-you-please.

When we leave Boston there will be about 300 people and 80 automobiles in the party. By the time we reach the White Mountains I expect 500 or more will be in the run.

BRUTAL THUG BEATS WOMAN IN CHELSEA

Struck Her, Threw Her to Ground and Then Kicked Her Down Flight of Steps.

Miss Ethel Wallace, who lives at No. 79 Lewis street, Everett, ran into the Chelsea Police Station in terror, and said that she had been accosted and assaulted in a dark and unfrequented spot on Broadway, by an unknown man, who hurled her to the sidewalk and struck her several times because she made an outcry.

She was walking along Broadway on the Chelsea side of the bridge between Charlestown and Chelsea when an unknown man came up behind her and spoke to her. Finding Miss Wallace would not answer him, her grabbed her by the arm and attempted to place the other arm around her neck as she screamed for help. With one hand he tried to muffle her voice while he slapped her face with the other.

She managed to break his hold and run away. He followed, and, catching her at the corner of Broadway and Eldridge place, hurled her to the ground and then kicked her down a flight of stairs which leads from the sidewalk on Broadway. She lay there in a dazed condition for several minutes, while her assailant escaped.

She was unable to describe her assailant beyond saying that he was very tall and was dressed in a dark suit and black Derby hat.

MRS. NAPHEN SAYS HUSBAND WAS INNOCENT

Temporary Injunction Granted on Funds Left by Former Congressman.

Mrs. Henry F. Naphen, widow of the late lawyer and former Congressman, when asked regarding the bill brought in the Supreme Court to tie up certain funds of the estate left by Mr. Naphen, on the alleged ground that the latter had converted to his own use trust moneys of Mrs. Alice Morrison of 485 Commonwealth avenue, this city, and on account of which a temporary injunction was granted, restraining three banks from disposing of $7,000 in their hands, said:

"It's slightly premature, to say the least, for Mr. Hurd to state that my husband has been guilty of using this money when the affairs of the estate have not yet been investigated by the administrator.

"If any money was used by my husband as stated, there was undoubtedly a reason for it, which will be made plain later," continued Mrs. Naphen. "My husband told me little of his business matters, and I did not seek to know much about them, for I had all I could attend to with my household duties."

The allegations that the former Congressman from the Tenth District, who, before his sudden death a month ago, was mentioned as a possible successor to Mayor Collins, had been guilty of a misuse of trust funds placed in his care, created a sensation yesterday. Especially in South Boston, where the deceased lawyer was so widely known and respected, the matter was discussed throughout the day. The opinion was expressed that there was a mistake somewhere, as the late Congressman was regarded everywhere as a man of the strictest integrity.

WANTS TO BE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR

Col. Augustus H. Goetting, of Springfield, Announces Candidacy.

Colonel Augustus H. Goetting of Springfield has formally entered the field for the Republican nomination for lieutenant-governor. He has sent to the press a statement of his views on the paramount questions, and says that, if elected, he shall not consider himself the "logical" candidate for governor three years hence.

Mr. Goetting says that he believes a revision of the tariff is necessary and that he is in favor of reciprocity. "We cannot maintain too strongly the doctrine of protection, which has done so much to make this country industrially great," says Mr. Goetting in his statement, "but to contend that the present tariff law is perfect and therefore cannot be improved is depriving protection of some of its benefits.

"We have passed the period of trade retaliation, of extreme national exclusiveness. We should make reasonable and sensible commercial treaties with other nations. Reciprocity should be recognized as the natural outgrowth of protection.

"We should do everything in our power to increase the expansion of New England trade, an expansion which finds its natural vent in Canada. I do not regard any tariff as sacred."

With regard to the lieutenant-governorship, Mr. Goetting says:

"It is my belief that the time has come to discontinue the 'promotion system,' so-called. A Lieutenant Governor should have the same right as any other citizen to be a candidate for the higher office, but it ought to be clearly understood that he has no claim beyond that."

MORGAN HAS HAT LIKE KING'S

Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, July 13.—J. Pierpont Morgan has blossomed out, wearing a white stove pipe hat encircled with a broad black band. The top piece is an exact counterpart of the head gear which King Edward, who sets the fashions, has made popular this year, and is understood to have been made from the same block as that worn by His Majesty.

But while the famous financier gives the stamp of his approval to the King's judgment in the selection of hats, he balks at creasing his trousers at the sides. Mr. Morgan's trousers had a razor-edge crease fore and aft as he sauntered down Threadneedle street. The freakish tile is more than ordinarily becoming to Mr. Morgan, who wears it with a rakish tilt. The old square top black derby worn for so many years by the money king has been discarded for the Summer.

NAVAL MILITIA TO CRUISE ON WARSHIPS

WASHINGTON, July 13.—The Navy Department is arranging to give the naval militia forces of some of the States cruises on a squadron of warships. The present programme contemplates that the naval militia of Connecticut, New Jersey and Pennsylvania be taken out August 5, that of Massachusetts and Rhode Island August 19, and that of Maine on a date yet to be fixed.

MRS. T. F. RYAN GIVES $125,000

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Mrs. Thomas F. Ryan, wife of Thomas F. Ryan of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, has made a gift of $125,000 to Georgetown University, and has promised to give $50,000 more in the near future.

Some time ago someone presented $125,000 to the university, which is the oldest Catholic institution of its kind in the United States, but the name of the donor was kept a secret. It was given to be used in the erection of a hall. This building is now in course of erection, and it will be called the Ada Ryan Hall, in honor of Mrs. Ryan, whom it was learned was the secret benefactor. Her additional $50,000 gift will be used to equip a gymnasium.

ZOLA'S GOODS SCATTERED.

Zola's villa at Mendon has at last formally passed to the Paris hospital authorities, to become a convalescent home for nurses, and now all the effects that he left in it are to be sold at auction and scattered.

WARSHIPS AT ROCKLAND.

ROCKLAND, Me., July 13.—The Newark and Hartford have left this port for Gardner's Bay. The monitor Florida has arrived here.

SAGE ON DECK AGAIN AT 89

NEW YORK, July 13.—Russell Sage has emerged from his retirement and appeared again in the financial district. Although he will be eighty-nine years old on the fourth of next month he walked as though he were fifty years younger than that and appeared to be oblivious of the intense heat.

He went to the meeting of the directors of the Western Union Telegraph Company, where many of his former associates congratulated him on his appearance.

Mr. Sage spent an hour or so at his office, where he had not been for any length of time since last February. His health has improved very much since his serious illness last Winter.

Mr. Sage, who does not believe in vacations, has no immediate plans to go to the country. He goes out driving every pleasant day with Mrs. Sage. One of his amusements is reading afternoon newspapers.

SHORTEST-NAMED WELCOMED HOME

EVERETT, July 13.—The wedding reception of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Re was held in their new home at No. 225 Belmont street. Mr. Re, who is celebrated as the man with the shortest name in the State, and his wife have been spending their honeymoon in the White Mountains.

KILLED UNDER FATHER'S EYES

Special to the Boston American.

SALEM, July 13.—John Hugh Broadley, the twelve-year-old son of John Broadley, was instantly killed in sight of his father. The boy coasted out of his father's yard on a gocart and ran right in front of a fast moving electric car. The boy's father was sitting on the veranda within a few feet of the accident.

HEAD BURIED IN DEEP MUD

Mortimer Sweeney, a painter employed on the Medford street bridge over the Mystic in Malden, fell head first into the soft mud of the river bottom, and sunk so deep that only his heels were visible.

A rope was fastened around his feet and he was dragged to the surface. He was unconscious, and nearly dead from suffocation. He is at Malden Hospital.

LEPER COLONY ON PENIKESE

At last the State Board of Charity has decided upon a site for its leper colony. It will buy Penikese Island, near Cuttyhunk. Governor Douglas has given his approval to the scheme. The price to be paid is $25,000. G. S. and F. A. Homer are the owners.

Dr. Lewis of the board has gone to New Bedford to complete negotiations for the purchase of the island. Papers will be passed immediately. The board has an appropriation of $50,000. What remains from the purchase of the island will be used for building houses on the island and for the care of the five lepers in the State.

LAWSON AND 5,000 POLICY HOLDERS TO SUE

Outlines How He Will Start in on His Work of Smashing the System.

STILL MAKING SPEECHES

MISSOURI VALLEY, Ia., July 13.—Thomas W. Lawson has announced that he will soon take the first step in the smashing of the "System." It will take the form, he said, of an immense lawsuit in which 5,000 policy holders of the big insurance companies will be joined as plaintiffs with more than 1,000 officials and members of the boards of directors as defendants.

"This action," said Mr. Lawson, "will be one in which the policy holders in behalf of themselves and others similarly situated will ask for the restitution of millions of dollars taken from them by the defendants in the form of illegal commissions and perquisites.

To Have 5,000 Plaintiffs.

"Responses to my request for the names of policy holders in the companies and the character of their policies are coming in in an astonishing way. In the first week there were over 14,000 of them. They came from men varying in station from laborer to the governors of States.

"Why join so many men as plaintiffs? Simply for this reason. Were there one, or two, or twelve, the "System" could perhaps influence them to drop the case, with 5,000 this will be impossible. Even were the "System" able to coax 1,000 to quit the other 4,000 would learn of it and become so highly indignant that they would fight the harder.

"I will say further that I mean every word of what I have said about putting John D. Rockefeller in the hands of a receiver."

Has Faith in Americans.

Mr. Lawson addressed an audience of 3,000 people here on the grounds of the Iowa Chautauqua Associtaion. The greater part of his address was a reply to an editorial in an Omaha paper, in which it was asserted that he had no faith in the people and in the power of the ballot.

Mr. Lawson said he did not distrust the American people or the efficacy of the ballot box. But the ballot box to his mind, was not an antidote for this particular disease. The question was one of politics, but of equal rights, and he, although a Republican, did not care whether his hearers were Republicans, Democrats, Socialists or Populists, so long as they were Americans.

DOUGLAS CLUB WILL ENTERTAIN 5,000 CHILDREN

Little Ones of Ward 13 to Be Guests of Democratic Club at Outing.

Nearly 5,000 children of Ward 13, South Boston, have been given tickets to the outing of the Douglas Club at Oak Island Grove, Revere, Saturday.

This is the first time in the history of Boston's Democratic political organizations that the Tammany practice of providing free Summer entertainment for the children of a section embraced by a club's membership has been followed. It will not be the last.

If you ask any child in Ward 13 who is responsible for the treat they are going to have he will say "Jerry Mac." Further, he will swear by "Jerry Mac," fight for "Jerry Mac," and when he grows up he is positive he will vote for "Jerry Mac."

"Jerry Mac" is the Hon. Jeremiah J. McNamara, former member of the Governor's Council, and president of the Douglas Club, the Democratic social organization of Ward 13. The club is to hold its annual outing Saturday, and several thousand tickets have been sold to members and friends. Mr. McNamara said it was a shame all the children couldn't go. Then he said they should go. Then he had tickets printed and announced he would give them out yesterday.

The 1,500 tickets Mr. McNamara had had printed were all gone at 2 o'clock. Another batch of 1,500, the distribution of which began at three, went as quickly. A rush order to the printer brought 1,000 more, and they went soon after six. Still there were several hundred youngsters awaiting tickets, and they were told to come back to-day.

There will be extra cars and boats of the Boston, Revere Beach and Lynn road to get the crowd to Oak Island Grove, and every youngster with a ticket will get a box of lunch, admission to the vaudeville show and the use of the swings. Seventy-five members of the Douglas Club will watch out that the children keep out of harm.

BOYS SEE CHUM DROWN IN RIVER

Edmund J. Carty, ten, of No. 4 Heath place, Roxbury, was drowned in sight of and almost in reach of half a dozen companions in the Charles River, near Cottage Farms bridge, while in bathing.

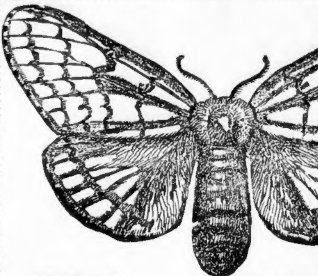
The boy was splashing merrily about, when he was seen to sink out of sight. He rose to the surface and called for help, but before he could be reached had gone down for the last time. John Kelley and other boys tried to reach the drowning lad, but were not quick enough.

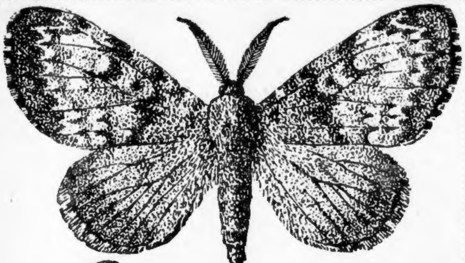
The accident struck the other lads with panic, and Matty Lydon, of Minden street, Roxbury, and another boy might have been drowned but for Benny Lipson, of No. 34 Walden street, Roxbury, who swam after them and took them to shoal water.

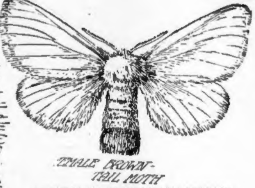
BOSTON DRUGGISTS AT BASS POINT

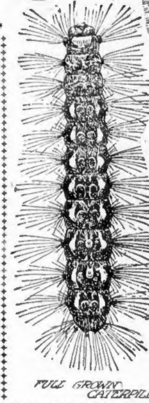
The annual outing of the Boston Association of Retail Druggists will be held during the afternoon and evening of July 25, at Bass Point. The regular monthly meeting of the association will be held during the afternoon at the Bass Point Hotel. Plans will be laid at that meeting for entertaining the hundreds of delegates who will visit Boston from all parts of the United States on September 18, 19, 20 and 21, for the annual convention of the National Association of Retail Druggists.

BROWN-TAIL MOTH ARMY INCREASES AND THREATENS TO DEVASTATE CITY

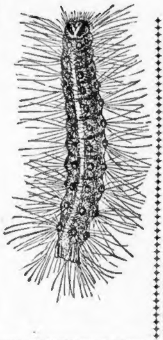








THE DESTRUCTIVE BROWN-TAIL.



FULL GROWN CATERPILLAR of the GYPSY MOTH

How to Tell the Gypsy Moth from the Brown-Tail Moth—the two Varieties Sketched from Life.

Trees and Houses of Greater Boston Covered with Little White Bugs.

Strenuous Efforts Being Made to Save Foliage and Eradicate Pest.

Despite the fresh cool breeze which travelled up and down the length and breadth of Boston during the early hours to-day, the army of brown tail moths which has captured the city held its stand and refused to be blown out of the city and into retreat. Everywhere building fronts, trees, electric light poles and awnings are sprinkled far too liberaly with the dreaded white dots.

The war on the army of pests is going on with increasing vigor. Every person who is troubled with the brown tail moth itch seems to have delegated himself a committee of one to represent the Army of Moth Exterminators, which is doing yeoman service, especially in the suburbs in the northern part of the city.

Sparrows Foes of Moths.

Besides the army of men, women and children, there are the sparrows who have joined in the fight. Along the paths in the Common one may stand and see the birds swooping down and rapidly picking the brown tails off trees and poles, winging them with a single jerk, and flying off with their prey. Lighted torches are used at night, being carried about the trees where the moths flying into the flame are burned.

It has been left for Arlington to discover and try a new method of eradicating the pest. At the suggestion of Professor Peter Schwab of the Arlington Board of Public Works, a tube was laid from a portable boiler and infested trees and buildings sprayed with steam. Thousands of moths were killed in a few minutes, and to-day the plan is being followed successfully in other parts of the town, and the original portable boiler is being worked over time.

In Medford the army of boys, who have been waging war on the pest for several weeks, has been discharged by the aldermen, and men have been hired to take their places. General Lawrence, who had a force of men at work spraying the trees on his property, has transferred them to the public highways, and will expend $70,000 before the campaign is ended.

In this, the height of the brown-tail moth season, the members of the Gipsy Moth Commission are doing nothing officially to rid Boston of the pest, which is now devastating Massachusetts, New Hampshire and a portion of Maine. The commissioners say that any attempt to keep down the brown tails at this late day is futile, and that it is best to let nature take its course by allowing the moth to lay its eggs and die. In the Winter the campaign against the eggs and the nests will be begun, preventing a recurrence of the present trouble next Summer. The commissioners say that the annoyance caused by the so-called moth itch is not serious.

The commissioners are expending their energies on preventing a second moth raid on the city within the next two weeks by the gypsy moth, which is now in its caterpillar state. In a few days the gypsy will be in its moth state. In the meantime a war has begun to exterminate the caterpillars.

Boston druggists are still busy putting up moth itch prescriptions. A very popular and successful treatment now being used in many homes consists of a solution of common baking soda and cold water, which is applied externally.

WONDERS FOR ELECTRIC SHOW

The giant 200,000 volts transformer of the Polytechnic Institute at Worcester, the Marconi wireless system of communication, the Ovington 1,000,000 volts apparatus, the wireless trolley car, the Heinze X-ray exhibit and the apparatus for making electrical thunder and lightning have been secured for exhibit at the electrical exposition which opens in Mechanics Building Saturday evening. Hundreds of mechanics, operatives, booth builders and decorators are transforming the big structure into an exhibition hall.

The entire electrical exposition is to be given in connection with the fifth annual convention of the National Electrical Contractors' Association. It will be open to the public from July 15 to July 22, inclusive.

POWDER WAGON ORDER COMING

To avoid any possibility of another dynamite accident such as occurred at Melrose last September, the State police are preparing new rules for the transportation of explosives of all kinds. Deputy Chief Neal is getting out the rules, which will necessitate all carts, wagons or cars containing explosives such as dynamite, nitro-glycerine, giant powder, or any other high explosive, to be marked "Powder Wagon."

Also all drivers must be able to read and write English, must be over twenty-one years of age, and of sober habits. All persons handling such explosives must keep records, showing the amount and the kind of explosive, and must also get a license from Chief Shaw of the State police, and not from any subordinate.

MILITIAMEN USE UP GUARD

There was a "rough house" on the train that brought Company M, Eighth Regiment, of Somerville, from the Westfield camp.

Just west of Worcester some of the members of the company attempted to pass from car to car. The guard, George Pfeiffer, as was his duty, checked their advance. The men, some of whom are said to have been drinking more than was good for them, thereupon made a rush upon Pfeiffer and a scrimmage ensued. The guard was struck in the face several times and knocked down. The officers rushed to his rescue and order was restored. Pfeiffer was so badly used up that he had to be relieved from duty.

HOW TO IDENTIFY GYPSY AND BROWN-TAIL MOTHS

THE BROWN-TAIL MOTH.

The full-grown caterpillar of the brown-tail moth is light brown, with a WHITE STRIPE on either side, and about two inches in length. The snow-white female moth is conspicuously marked with an enlarged tuft of brown hair, which gives to the insect its common name. Whenever these insects come in contact with human flesh they produce a most severe and painful nettling. This is apparently not due to any poisonous material in the hairs, but rather to the finely barbed and brittle hairs themselves. So severe is this affection that in many cases people have been made seriously ill by it.

The tuft of brown hair is absent on the male moth. The brown-tail moth lays from two hundred to four hundred small globular eggs, thickly covered with a mass of brown hairs.

THE GYPSY MOTH.

The caterpillar of the gypsy moth has a double row of BLUE SPOTS, followed by a double row of CRIMSON SPOTS, which may almost invariably be quite distinctly seen along the back when the caterpillar has reached a length of one inch and a half or more.

No caterpillar to be found in New England, except the gypsy moth caterpillar, is thus spotted with blue and crimson. Gypsy moth caterpillars of any age or size are decidedly hairy. The head of the gypsy moth caterpillar is large in proportion to the body.

In the moth state the pest cannot be told from common moths except by an expert, although the female moth can always be distinguished by her inability to fly. The wings flutter, but that is all. The male moth is not so handicapped.

YES, SAYS MISS BARRYMORE

LONDON, July 13.—Miss Ethel Barrymore to-day confirmed the report of her engagement to Captain Harry Graham. The formal announcement will be made to-morrow in London in the Morning Post.

Captain Graham was formerly in the Coldstream Guards, and for more than five years was on the staff of Lord Minto, Governor-General of Canada. He is at present private secretary to Lord Rosebery, and, of course, as such is interested in politics. He has achieved considerable reputation as a writer, and has published volumes of satirical and nonsense verse.

Of the former his best known is "Misrepresentative Men," which contains a tribute to President Roosevelt.

"How did you find it out?" exclaimed Miss Barrymore when asked about the engagement.

"Oh, yes; it is true, and, yes, I am really quite happy."

No date has yet been set for the marriage, but it will take place during the latter part of next Winter or early in the Spring.

At present her idea is for the wedding to take place in America, for Miss Barrymore says she wants to be married at home, which to her means New York.

Mr. Lionel Barrymore, her eldest brother, will probably give the bride away on that occasion.

Miss Barrymore says she has no intention of retiring from the stage after her marriage. She will sail in the latter part of August for America, going to San Francisco to open in "Sunday." After her season on the Pacific coast she will return to New York to open at the Hudson Theatre in "Alice, Sit by the Fire." In this play John Barrymore, who is now with his sister, will play the part of Steve.

FAMOUS YACHTSMAN ILL.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., July 13.—Walter F. Davids, known on Long Island sound as the "father of yachtsmen," is broken in health and has been sent to the Masonic home at Utica, where he will spend the remainder of his days.

HAS TEACHER WED JANITOR?

Friends of Miss Mary Eliza Stearns of No. 40 School street, Somerville, a teacher in the Knapp School, and of John C. Sampson, who for five years has been janitor of the same school, are wondering whether or not the couple are married.

Sampson secured a marriage license for himself and Miss Stearns Monday morning, and in the afternoon was seen leaving Miss Stearns's suite on School street with Miss Stearns, each carrying a dress suit case. Miss Stearns had quietly informed a few of her dearest friends that she intended to become a bride soon, but was mysterious about the time and place.

The romance of the couple began about three years ago. Sampson has been divorced from his first wife. He came here from Rochester, N. H., and for many years was employed as a fireman on the Boston & Maine Railroad. Soon after becoming janitor of the Knapp School he began paying attention to Miss Stearns, and a short time ago they decided to be married. Their friends say they are now on their honeymoon, but they wonder where they were married and when.

HORSES SCARE ROSEN "HELP"

Baron de Rosen's Russian butler and housekeeper have become so frightened of his spirited American horses that they can no longer be induced to enter a carriage. They started from Magnolia to Gloucester for the purpose of exchanging Russian money for that of Uncle Sam. They were decidedly nervous all the way, but when the team shied at a steam roller working on the road near Beverly the climax was reached, and as soon as the coachman could bring the team to a halt they jumped from the carriage.

Nothing could induce them to re-enter, and they continued their trip on foot to Gloucester, returning to Magnolia by train.

STABBED HIM AS HE SLEPT

A man claiming to be John Collen of Everett, about fifty, was stabbed in the neck by an unknown man while asleep on the Common early to-day. At the Relief station an examination revealed a dangerous wound near the windpipe, about an inch deep.

Collen tells a peculiar story. He says he was sitting on a bench about 11 o'clock when a young man approached and engaged him in conversation. They talked politics and came to blows, Collen says. Collen went to sleep, and while lying on the bench the young fellow returned and stabbed him and then ran away. Dazed and bleeding, Collen made his way to Park street, where he was found by Patrolman Kilgren of Court square station.

TO BUILD TURBINE STEAMER AT QUINCY

A contract has been closed between the Fore River Ship Building Company and the Southern Pacific Railway for the construction of a 6,000-ton passenger and freight steamer. It will be by far the largest turbine propeller ship built in America.

GIRL ILL AT BROCKTON MAY BE DRUGGED

Returns Mysteriously to Home After Week's Absence, Suffering Convulsions.

BROCKTON, July 13.—Physicians who are attending Miss Maud Boothby, thirty-one, who was found on the street after having been missing since July 5, say the woman is suffering from drugs or heat.

She is now suffering convulsions at her home, No. 29 Linden street. She tells nothing about how she became ill, and no one seems to know where she has been since the day of her disappearance.

On July 4 she and Sanford Makepeace, aged seventy-four, of No. 467 Montello street, went to Nantasket and were expected to return in the afternoon. From that time until Tuesday afternoon, when she was found on the street, nothing had been heard from her, and the family had been unable to find Mr. Makepeace at his home.

Mr. Makepeace said that when it came time to return home the girl wished to stay longer, and he secured a room for her and another for himself at the Hotel Nantasket, and they remained there that night. They remained at the beach the rest of the week, except that thy did not stay at the same hotel.

Last Monday, on the beach, he said, the girl had one of her attacks of convulsions, and a patrolman took her to the police station to recover. Later they refused to let Makepeace have her, and he gave them her address and asked them to see that she was sent home. He said he then came home that night.

The manner in which the girl reached home remains a mystery.

MONEY TAKEN, DIAMONDS NOT

Miss Hazel Dushane, of No. 25 Burnside avenue, Somerville, asserts that she has been robbed of a $50 gold certificate, although diamonds worth $200, which lay beside it, were not touched.

The break was discovered by Miss Dushane, who is employed as bookkeeper in the Boston Tavern, when she returned from work Tuesday evening. She found the front door open and the neighbors reported they had seen a mysterious man about the premises.

SEA SERPENT, HEAT CRAZED, ON WAY SOUTH

Reported at Nantucket, Cohasset and Scituate; Due at Duxbury To-day.

HE TIPS OVER A DORY

Pity the poor sea serpent. The hot weather is driving him south and crazy.

He's going south because he has been reported successively from Nantasket, Cohasset and Scituate, a coastwise southerly course that will eventually bring up at the Equator. His next point of appearance, according to his present itinerary, is Duxbury, where he is expected to-day.

The fact that he is traveling that way in this weather is taken as prima facie evidence that the poor serpent has lost his bearings in the heat. He probably started north, but has turned about in his course and doesn't know it.

His heat prostration is also taking a violent form. This is shown by his actions yesterday at Scituate, where he deliberately tipped over George Cole's dory. Cole climbed aboard again and the frenzied water snake promptly capsized the dory a second time.

The South Shore is looking anxiously for some alienist to prescribe for the sea serpent's condition. Any expert on insanity who wishes to qualify on a few hundred feet of sea serpent can be accommodated Address Duxbury.

The serpent's record to date is this.

Monday he was seen about a mile off Simon's Farm Beach, Nantasket, by Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Hatch, who were out fishing.

Tuesday he was reported off Black Rocks, Cohasset.

Yesterday George Cole, the Scituate fisherman, had his encounter with the heat-crazed serpent in Scituate harbor. Cole is game for ordinary sea serpents, but he passed up this crazy one after two tip-overs and pulled for the shore.

Roused by the Terrible Conditions Revealed by the Pitiful Story of Bertha Claiche, Who, Fearing for Her Own Life, Killed Her Brutal Master, New York Will Strive by Organized Effort to

STAMP OUT WHITE GIRL SLAVERY

Bertha Claiche, who slew her enslaver

It Was His Life or Mine, Says Bertha Claiche, White Slave

There are lots of girls just like me. Hundreds of them. They can't get away. They know better than to try to. They would only get beaten. There is only one thing to do. Kill him! I had to or he would kill me. I know it. He had got so there was never a week that he didn't beat me at least three times.—Bertha Claiche, New York white slave, who killed her master.

Women Band Together, Raise a Fund for Her Defence and Hire a Skilled Lawyer.

NEW YORK, July 13.—Even as this city revolted a few years ago against the infamous "cadet system," so the public is preparing to revolt to-day over the horrible conditions made known through the pitiful story of Bertha Claiche, now under arrest for the murder of Emil Gerdron, the man whose slave she had been for five years.

That there could be one case such as hers would be enough to stir the city; that, as has come out since her arrest, she is but one of hundreds in the half-world whose experience has been like hers, has aroused the entire city.

That she murdered Gerdron, and murdered him in cold blood, is denied neither by her nor her friends. Yet, all over New York, the girl is receiving the sympathy of thousands, and more than a hundred women have clubbed together and raised the funds necessary for her defence when she comes to trial on the charge of murder.

Like the plot of a novel by Zola reads her story. It would take the brutal realism of a Zola or a De Maupassant to tell it. The American pen cannot write of such a case in its detail; the American ear could not hear it without shame.

One Out of Hundreds.

Yet in New York this is but one case out of hundreds.

Hundreds of men—or apologies for men—there are in New York, who own white slaves whom they force to do their bidding on the streets and in the purlieus of the under world. Some of them control the acts of one girl; some of more. These girls are as much the slaves of their masters as ever was black Tom or Sambo.

Why should they not leave their masters? Isn't this a free country?

Bertha Claiche answered these questions for herself and the others like her more than once. She left Gerdron several times, fleeing as far from him as she could go. Then she found that he and his mates have a sort of organization. She discovered that she could not run away and not be found. She learned that discovery meant punishment—blows, and kicks and curses, and starvation.

The police had arrested her more than once. They were her natural enemies. It was only as the last resort that she went to them with her story of abuse. They arrested Gerdron and locked him up and he said he would "do her" when he got out. He was to be released on bail. She knew it.

Then She Killed Him.

Then she killed him. She shot him dead with a revolver she had bought for just that purpose. She saw his life blood ebb out as he died—and she laughed. For she was no longer a slave. She was free for the first time since those days in the embroiderer's shop in Paris.

That was a long time ago, more than five years. She was sixteen, and she fell deeply in love with the handsome, black-haired workman in the same shop who devoted himself to her. She received seven dollars a week. She worked hard enough for it. When they went to live in a home of their own she was glad. Gerdron was almost always good to her, then. She thought he really loved her. Perhaps he did—then.

She welcomed his proposition that they come to America, where money was to be made much more easily than in France. She came with him. They settled in New York. One day Gerdron roughly smote the scales from her eyes.

"Bring me home money," he said.

She begged and implored him. He beat her. She ran away. He brought her back and beat her. She appealed to her acquaintances for help. They told him and he beat her.

She spoke no English. She knew little of the country. It wasn't long before she was arrested. From that first arrest—there were others, afterward—she feared the police. They were the last ones she would be likely to go to with her troubles. It speaks much of the straits to which she finally came that she ever went to them.

She finally came to speak the language of the country, and to know her way about New York, but she never could learn how to avoid the man who was her master, nor leave the life he had forced her into. Sometimes she thought of killing herself, but she could never bring herself to it.

Part of a System.

She came in time to know that she was a part of a system; that there were hundreds of other women in New York's half-world who lived as she did, and for the same cause—because they were slaves and were afraid. She came to know that the men who sent the women into the streets and took from them their ill-gotten money were banded together in a society to assist one another in retaining their power.

After this came the fearful knowledge that she was not the only slave of her master; that Emil Gerdron had others like herself. She had not even the satisfaction—if satisfaction it might have been—of knowing that the man she had followed from France, who was living on the spoils of her life of crime, was at least content with the money she could bring.

It was after an especially severe beating that Bertha Claiche showed her bruises to the police, told them she feared for her life, and had her master arrested. Then, when he was about to become free again, she killed him.

"He rushed at me on the street," she said through the bars of her cell in the Tombs, "and told me he was going to kill me. I knew he would. He had said a great many times he would kill me if I ever had him arrested. So I shot him. If I hadn't he would have killed me.

"I suppose I will go to the electric chair. I don't care. He will never bother me any more. I am free for the first time in five years. I am glad.

"Do you know what he did? He tried to send my sister Jeanne and my half-sister Irma to make money for him the same way I did. When they told him they would not, he choked Jeanne and said he would kill them both."

No One Mourned Him.

No one seemed to feel much worse about Gerdron's death than the woman who repaid him for his brutality with a pistol shot.

The hearse that bore his casket from the undertaking rooms, where his body laid two days, was followed by a single hack. It was empty when it left the rooms, but at the Long Island ferry it was filled with young men of Gerdron's acquaintance, and three other hacks followed it. There was no religious service of any kind. The burial at the cemetery was hurried. The young men all seemed glad to be on their way back to the city.

There is a club—"The French Club," it is called—which is the rendezvous for the coterie of men whose living depends upon their mastery of girls such as Bertha Claiche. Directly across the street from this club is the home of a woman named Martha Francis. She had known Bertha Claiche. At her home a meeting of women was held Tuesday afternoon, and a fund has been raised as a result among the women of the Tenderloin for the girl's defence.

"We know what provocation she had to kill him," said the Francis woman, reluctantly, to a reporter. "A committee was appointed, and every woman is going to do something to collect evidence against the gang of men that Gerdron beloned to, and help break it up." They have retained former Assistant District Attorney Otto A. Rosalsky to defend the girl.

This shows the feeling in the quarter over the case. It is rumored in the underworld that if the men of the gang that assembles at the "French Club" can learn the names of the women who are working in this movement their lives will be in danger.

To Hurry Her to Trial.

Bertha Claiche is in the Tombs. She will be called before the coroner and his jury to-morrow, at which time it is expected the evidence presented will be confined to the stories of the policemen who saw the murder. Then she will be returned to the Tombs to await the action of the Grand Jury, which is expected to return an indictment within a few hours. The District-Attorney will probably hurry her case to trial as speedily as possible after that.

In her cell in the Tombs, she talked yesterday of the life that has been hers.

"There are lots of girls just like me," she said. "Hundreds of them. They can't get away. They know better than to try to. They would only get beaten. There is only one thing to do. Kill him! I had to or he would kill me. I know it. He had got so there was never a week that he didn't beat me at least three times."

AUTOS CAUSE $29,000 FIRE

GREAT BARRINGTON, July 13.—Ravenhurst, the Summer home of John Shepard, Jr., of Providence, R. I., in Sheffield, was the scene of a serious fire and a fortunate escape to-day, when Mr. Shepard's $21,000 carriage barn and two automobiles, valued at $8,000 were destroyed.

Thomas Sexton, Mr. Shepard's chauffeur, entered the barn with a lighted lantern to refill the tanks of an auto. His wife was in her apartments in the building. There was an explosion and the barn was enveloped in flames. Mrs. Sexton escaped by climbing to the roof. Nearly blinded by smoke Mr. Sexton crawled out of the barn.

Besides the automobiles Mr. Shepard's horses, seven carriages and all his harnesses were burned. Plans are now being prepared by Mr. Shepard's architect for a fireproof garage.

DREXEL BUYS VEGLIA.

VIENNA, July 13.—The steam yacht Veglia, owned by the late Baron Nathaniel de Rothschild, has been sold to George W. C. Drexel. The price was $140,000.

The Veglia is a steel screw steam yacht of 288 net tons. Her length is 248 feet, breadth 31 feet and depth 18½ feet. She was built in Glasgow in 1890 by David W. Henderson & Co., from G. L. Watson's designs for Baron de Rothschild, and belonged to the port of Trieste.

HEAVIES AT BIG GUNS TO-DAY

Special to the Boston American.

NEW BEDFORD, July 13.—The artillerymen of the First Heavies put in another hard day's work yesterday at Fort Rodman, going through their drill evolutions with rare dash and smartness. All the preparatory drills having been completed, the men are now bent upon making a good showing at the target practice to-day.

The gun crews of the competing battalions have worked vigorously on the eight-inch guns, and have got the work down "pat." Three cups, offered by Major Fred B. Carpenter of the First Brigade staff, will be competed for during the tour, and, weather permitting, there should be some creditable shooting done by the artillerymen.

Each battery will be allowed three rounds on the eight-inch guns and ten rounds on the fifteen-pounders; 7,500 yards will be the distance for the eight-inch guns, 2,500 yards for the fifteen-pounders and 1,500 yards for the subcaliber practice.

Major Quinby held a school for the battery commanders in the morning and the officers attended a school in submarine defences. The regulars at the garrison went through artillery practice on the big guns, and subsequently were out for infantry drill on parade.

A ball game, played between the regulars and a picked team from K, C and B companies, attracted a good sized crowd in the afternoon, and the victory of the militiamen by seven runs to five proved popular.

THIEF CAUGHT BY A BULLDOG

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 13.—A bulldog captured a burglar who entered the store of H. F. Fletcher & Co. Mrs. George A. Deland, who lives up stairs, saw the burglar enter through a rear window and, in summoning the police, alarmed the burglar.

When the police arrived the intruder had gone. A dog in the rear hallway barked persistently, and a policeman turned his electric searchlight in that direction. There he saw the dog holding a man by the seat of the trousers. The dog released his hold when the patrolman grabbed the burglar. The prisoner, who gave the name of Sullivan of Holyoke, was not harmed by the dog.

"I could have broken away, but what was the use. He's grab me again and make sure of the job the second time," was Sullivan's comment.

TEST OF DRY DOCK BY NAVAL BOARD

With the floating of the mammoth caisson to close the entrance to the new dry dock at the Charlestown Navy Yard, the greatest dry dock in the country will be ready for the test of the naval board. When completed it will be the largest dry dock in the world and will accommodate the biggest ship afloat.

THE SOLDIER-ACTOR

Knows the Value of Pe-ru-na By Many Experiences.

In some points the soldier and the actor have similar experiences.

Both are frequently put to test to the full extent of their abilities; both are subject to constant changes and new environments; both are exposed to climate in peculiar ways.

These are not the only points of agreement. Both regard Peruna as the greatest medicine in the world to prevent catarrhal ailments and to cure catarrhal ills already acquired.

The actor and the soldier are among Peruna's best friends.

Therefore, the Soldier-Actor not only understands the merits of Peruna in military campaign, but the usefulness of Peruna to the one who must stand before the footlights every night and face large and critical audiences.

Mortimer Kaphan, the Soldier-Actor, who organized the Soldier's Actor Company which fought in the late Spanish-American War, writes from 193 Broadway, New York City

"Being subject to colds and catarrh of the head, I have always resorted to the use of Peruna, which I have never known to fail to accomplish a speedy cure. I never go on the road without a bottle of the same."

An Army Officer.

William T. Johnson, Ex-Capt., U. S. A., writes from Tacoma Park, D. C.:

"Please put me down as a thorough believer in Peruna as a catarrh remedy and as a tonic good for the effects not only of that obnoxious disease, but to tone up the system that has been overtaxed or run down by continued strain, either physical or mental."

What Carleton Macy Says.

Mr. Carleton Macy, a prominent actor who has starred successfully for several seasons, sends the following from 146 22nd Street, New York City:

"I consider Peruna a great remedy for catarrh. Typhoid fever had left me with chronic catarrh of the bowels. I was induced to try Peruna and in a month's time I was in a normal state again."

MORTIMER KAPHAN, As Brutus in Julius Caesar.

ARE "BAD" BOYS BAD OR ONLY "MISUNDERSTOOD"?

Bostonians Give Their Views of Sweeping Statement by Michigan Doctor.

YOU mustn't say any more to your boy:

"O, Johnny, you're a bad, bad boy."

For if you do Johnny may quote Dr. Amos Barlow of Michigan and reply:

"Why no, mother, you wrong me. I'm not bad. I'm merely misunderstood."

For, according to Dr. Barlow, as he just told the St. Paul convention of the National Children's Home Society, "There are no really bad boys; merely some boys are misunderstood."

This sweeping statement of the Michigan doctor is being variously received in Boston, particularly by people whose associations bring them in close contact with boys of all kinds. The BOSTON AMERICAN has secured these interviews on this "bad boy" subject:

Assistant Superintendent Finley of the Parental School, West Roxbury:

I do think there are some really bad boys.

There are not many of them. They are in the great minority. And I do not mean degenerates or mentally defective boys when I say bad ones. I mean sound, healthy boys who are really vicious.

So far, however, as the so-called bad boy is concerned, he is more often than not a mere victim of circumstances, of environment and training. He is not bad at heart and would not be bad at all probably if given a fair chance.

Dr. Charles P. Putnam of No. 63 Marlboro street, chairman of the Board of Trustees for the Boston Children's Institutions Department:

A boy is very seldom wholly bad. I take much the same view as the speaker at that St. Paul convention.

In this bad boy question, so-called, there is much question of misdirected energy. People of the best intentions often cause children to misbehave.

Environment Counts.

Then, a boy's environment has much to do with his behavior, though not everything. I have known of boys in the best society to misbehave themselves as much as boys brought up in inferior surroundings. The boy nature in itself is not bad, so it seems to me.

Acting Superintendent Anthony of the Farm School, Thompson's Island:

In my experience there is no boy but what has good qualities which can be appealed to. Of course, there are some bad boys. But evil habit with a boy is mainly a matter of environment.

I think that, if a boy is bad, it is because his good qualities have not been brought out. The qualities are there if they can only be reached. This applies, of course, to boys normally sound, not defective mentally nor degenerate.

Father Corrigan, in charge of the Working Boys' Home:

No really bad boys?

Why, sure there are. Just as much as there are bad men. Why not? The man is but an older growth of the boy.

Yet, there are not so terribly many boys of the really bad kind, though there are some.

Maybe some of them are misunderstood. But one principal reason for evil behavior is inheritance, especially when combined with absence of moral training and of religion. These are fundamental things, moral training and religion, and without them boys have a tendency to go along on strictly natural lines. And some of them become bad boys.

Misunderstood.

By Morton Birge.

The Western theory that there is no really bad boy, merely some who are misunderstood, may lead to utter sparing of the rod.

Gee, I ain't er goin' to get no lickin's enny more,
Ain't er goin' ter get no whalin's till I'm offul sore;
Dad, he's tooken his rattan and stuck it on er shelf,
Ma, she's sayin' sump'n 'bout she's "been 'shamed o' myself"—
Fer I've been "misunderstood."

Gee, I'm stuck on that long word, "misunderstood," they say,
Think o' not er single lickin', all th' hull blame day;
Wuz er time they us't ter tell me I wuz offul bad,
Now, no matter wot I'm up ter, Ma, she sez ter Dad:
"Johnny's been misunderstood."

I don't 'zactly get th' meanin' o' that word as yet,
But ther' ain't no better, bullier word than that, you bet;
Now I'm goin' ter raise Ol' Harry, ennyway I please,
Fer I know Dad ain't er goin' ter take me 'crost his knees—
Cos I'm "misunderstood."

SUMMER AMUSEMENTS

Keith's Theatre

The program by the Fadettes at Keith's this week is an even more attractive one than usual. The surrounding vaudeville is of the sort that especially appeals to summer theatregoers and is full of fun.

Empire Theatre

"The Telephone Girl" is rapidly nearing the end of her stay at the Empire Theatre, and those who are in search of pleasant hot weather entertainment cannot go astray when they elect to witness this merry musical comedy. Next week the Castle Square company in "A Royal Family."

Austin & Stone's Museum

Fun music and dancing are having their innings at Austin & Stone's Museum this week where the Creole Belles are the star attraction and are making a big hit. Powell's Minstrel Maids are furnishing the entertainment in the theatre.

Paragon Park

Speedy, the great high diver, is heading the list of attractions in the free open air circus at Paragon Park this week. Speedy jumps 125 feet through the air into a tank of water only thirty-five inches deep. Other attractions are Zono, Jordan, Z eno, sensational acrobats, and the Hacker and Lester trio of trick bicyclists.

Norumbega Park

Norumbega Park holds its own and gains a little beside. It is an ideal hot weather resort for a cool breeze always blows up the Charles River Valley. The zoo, the band, the chalet and the vaudeville in the rustic theatre are all attractions.

Lexington Park

Lexington Park is breaking all records in point of attendance. The roller skating hippodrome is a big attraction, and there is a first-class vaudeville show in the rustic theatre.

Tremont Theatre

"Kafoozelum" is enjoying marked prosperity during this, its third week, at the Tremont Theatre. Next week will be the fourth and last week of this merry musical entertainment. Seats go on sale next Monday at the Tremont Theatre for the production of "The Geezer of Geek."

Colonial Theatre

Seats are now on sale for "The Pearl and the Pumpkin," which will be seen for the first time on any stage at the Colonial Theatre next Monday evening. To-day, to-morrow and Saturday 1,000 booklets of "The Pearl and the Pumpkin" will be presented to all who call for them at the box office until each day's supply is exhausted.

Palace Theatre

A good entertainment of burlesque and vaudeville is being given at the Palace this week. Two laughable burlesques are presented by the stock company.

Castle Square Theatre

"Brother Officers" has been greatly enjoyed this week as played by the Castle Square Treatre stock company. This organization is to be transferred to the Empire Theatre next Monday, beginning with "A Royal Family."

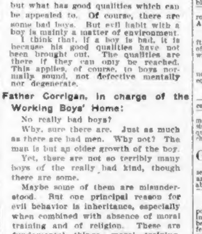
Bowdoin Square Theatre

"Because She Loved" is pleasing the audiences at Bowdoin Square Theatre. Next week the play will be "The Sign of the Four."

Point of Pines

On Saturday the Filene and R. H. White nines of the Dry Goods League will play a ball game at the Point of Pines. The nightly display of $1,000 fireworks has proven a strong attraction. There is a first-class vaudeville show in the rustic theatre.

The highest-grade, lowest-price clothing that bears the Union Label is Morse-made.



We've ploughed deep for our Counter Clearing Markdown, and we've turned up values that make this sale an economic event of great importance.

All the broken lots and incomplete lines of our fancy suits and trousers have been radically reduced to ensure their clearance from our counters.

The fact that every garment is Morse-made increases the strength of these offerings to a point that places this movement in a class quite apart from the usual sale.

DENVER GETS ELKS NEXT TIME

BUFFALO, July 13.—The next annual reunion of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks will be held in Denver in 1906. One ballot decided this at the grand lodge meeting.

Perry Clay of Denver led the winning fight for the mile-high city. Denver received twice as many votes as Dallas, which made a strong fight, led by William H. Atwell. Atlantic City had few real supporters.

It is estimated that 50,000 Elks marched over the wet streets in the big parade.

BURGLARS BIND HIM, STEAL $200

Louis Goldzweig, twenty-five years old, who says he is a travelling salesman, reported to the police to-day that his room at No. 183 Chambers street was entered by two men through an open window while he slept. Their noise while going through his trunk awakened him, and when he protested they bound him with a muffler, he says, so that he could make no outcry. According to his story they then took a ring valued at $25 from his finger, $120 in cash from his trunk and a gold watch and chain valued at $50.

LABOR NEWS

ALLIED PRINTING TRADES UNION LABEL COUNCIL BOSTON, MASS. 96

A committee from the Central Labor Union and the Building Trades Council is to wait upon Mayor Collins and request that permission be given to use the same route for the coming Labor Day parade as that of last year. This committee is composed of President Jeremiah J. Donovan of the Building Trades Council, Fred J. Kneeland of Painters' Union No. 11, and President Arthur M. Huddell of Hoisting and Portable Engineers' Union.

At a meeting of the joint Labor Day committee of the Central Labor Union and Building Trades' Council, representatives of District Assembly No. 30, original, stated that the unions affiliated with the assembly were to take a referendum vote on the advisability of parading Labor Day. The result of this vote will be made known at the next meeting of the joint Labor Day committee on July 26.

President Franklin of the Musicians' Protective Union urged the necessity of all unions applying immediately for bands at No. 47 Hanover street in order to avoid any friction.

ELECTRICAL WORKERS.

President John J. McLaughlin and Business Agent Peter W. Collins will represent Electrical Workers' Union No. 103 as delegates to the international convention to be held at Washington in September. Fred Reardon and L. W. E. Kimball are the alternates. Eight new members have been admitted.

LABOR NOTES.

Pattern Makers' Association will hold an outing at Bass Point, Nahant, July 22.

Carpenters' District Council has called a special meeting for to-night.

Officers will be installed at to-night's meeting of Stone Masons' Union No. 9. The question of parading Labor Day will also be considered.

Elevator Constructors' Union meets to-night to take action regarding any firms which have not signed the new agreement.

Nathan Sodekson will represent the Newsboys' Protective Union at the annual convention of the State Branch, A. F. of L., to be held at Pittsfield in October.

WHOLE WORLD OF SPORTS COVERED FOR THE BOSTON AMERICAN BY ITS CORPS OF EXPERTS

DINNEEN PICKED TO FACE THE WHITE SOX

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, July 13.—Bill Dinneen is slated to pitch for Boston in the farewell game with the White Sox to-day. He is in good form, and says he is determined to land to-day's game at all hazards.

"Big Bill" is certainly looking in grand trim, and if condition counts for anything he already has the game bagged.

It is likely that "Doc" White, who is one of the Sox's winning twirlers this season, will perform for the home aggregation. White has always been a rather stiff proposition for the Champs, and Fielder Jones trusts he will be to-day.

After yesterday's double-header, there should be a large crowd out to see the fun to-day, as it will be the last appearance of the Champs in this city in a long time.

Both managers are rather pleased with the outcome of the double-header. Baseballists know what a stiff task it is to win two games in an afternoon, and the fact is they don't expect to. Therefore, satisfaction all around.

In the first game Jesse Tannehill, as usual, was invincible. He only allowed the Sox six scattered hits. He had speed to burn and admirable control with men on bases.

On the other hand, Nick Altrock was able to keep the hits of the Champs pretty well scattered. Four of Boston's six hits were for extra bases.

Some brilliant fielding was done in the first session by both teams.

Cy Young pitched the second game for the Bostons, and the local fans looked to see some star twirling done. However, the "old gentleman" was not in the best of form, and when the Sox hit him it was good and hard.

Owens was on the firing line for the home team, and he kept the Champs pretty much away from the home plate.

Hobe Ferris fielded in wonderful fashion. He pulled off some stunts that made the fans marvel. Some of the old-timers said that he played the second bag faster than it was ever played in this city.

MIDDIES MAY RACE ON THE HUDSON

NEW YORK, July 12.—The chances that Annapolis may enter a crew in the intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie next year, after all begin to look much brighter as the result of a statement made yesterday by a prominent navy official. "The idea of letting the Middies race at Poughkeepsie at first did not appear to have much chance of ever passing beyond the stage of talk," said he, "for the simple reason that it was considered an unwise thing for the midshipmen to compete away from home against institutions other than the Military Academy at West Point. There is no particular rivalry with any other school or colege, but the very fact that Annapolis d rowing races this year with Yale, Columbia, Georgetown and Pennsylvania makes it look better for a race outside with the other college crews."

A formal invitation to Annapolis is to be sent by the Intercollegiate Rowing Association, at present composed of Columbia, Cornell and the University of Pennsylvania. The three other colleges whose crews row on the Hudson are there only b yinvitation of these charter members of the association.

The idea of having Annapolis compete at Poughkeepsie came about when Columbia went down to the Severn to row against the middies. After the race, which was won by Annapolis, some of the Columbia men were talking over the showing of the middies. The fact that Annapolis was not beaten by any of the four crews she met this season prompted Manager W. E. F. Bradley of the Columbia crew to say: "I wish that you people could come up to the Hudson and row there." "We'd do it soon enough," responded the Annapolis captain, "if we could get permission."

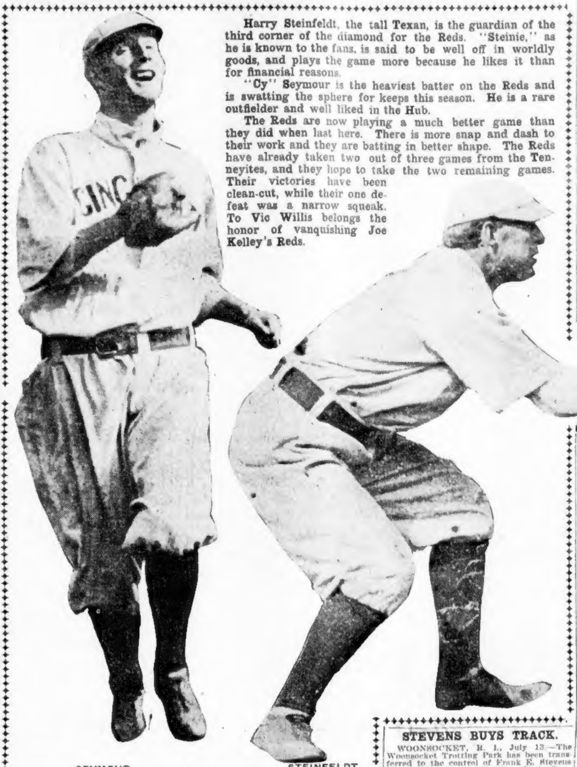
It is thought not unlikely that President Roosevelt, who is known to be a great lover of clean sport, will be able to secure permission from the Navy Department for the Middies to compete. It certainly would inject an interesting element into the regatta at Poughkeepsie, because the Annapolis oarsmen would come nearer to making Cornell hustle than almost any other crew. The drawback in the way of their coming up, it is said, is that they would probably be unable to spend much time in preliminary practice at Poughkeepsie.

SEYMOUR AND STEINFELDT OF THE REDS.

Harry Steinfeldt, the tall Texan, is the guardian of the third corner of the diamond for the Reds. "Steinie," as he is known to the fans, is said to be well off in worldly goods, and plays the game more because he likes it than for financial reasons.

"Cy" Seymour is the heaviest batter on the Reds and is swatting the sphere for keeps this season. He is a rare outfielder and well liked in the Hub.

The Reds are now playing a much better game than they did when last here. There is more snap and dash to their work and they are batting in better shape. The Reds have already taken two out of three games from the Tenneyites, and they hope to take the two remaining games. Their victories have been clean-cut, while their one defeat was a narrow squeak. To Vic Willis belongs the honor of vanquishing Joe Kelley's Reds.



These pictures were taken by a Boston American photographer at the South End Grounds yesterday.

REDS MAY PITCH BIG OVERALL TO-DAY

It's plain reading that the Reds are not going to make a clean sweep of all the games with the Tenneyites and the fourth one this afternoon will give the Puritans a chance to even the series as the Reds have it two to one just now.

It will be just as well for the local team to make sure of the one to-day, as Garry Herrmann, the owner of the Reds, is expected in town to-morrow, and his boys will endeavor to play the best in them with the boss on deck.

The Walpole Street team has proved that it can turn around after playing a vari-colored game and show the winning hue in the same day, so it's a difficult matter to tell whether they will duplicate a good performance or imitate a bad one.

The team is likely to make a bunch of misplays one day and the next give an exhibition that causes the fans' eyes to stick out.

Overall Carded for Reds.

Joe Kelley has given out that his big California pitcher, Orvie Overall, will be the headliner to-day and the followers are anxious to see him work.

He is the biggest player on the team and has barrels of speed behind his weight.

Tenney may decide to put little Cy Young up against him and the Reds will find the star southpaw a problem for them.

It was an even split with the Reds in the double header yesterday.

The first game was more of a travesty on the diamond, as the Reds made it a runaway. Fraser was hit hard and often and took his medicine to the end.

It looked like a shutout for the Tenneyites till Delehanty's swat over the fence came in the fifth. Then a couple of scores were added the last time up. Some glaring errors by Tenney gave the Reds a good start and they got together in the sixth and made a collection of six hits which brought in as many runs with one added for good measure.

Willis Was Lucky.

How Willis got away with the second game from Harper is a mystery, as in two innings he passed three men and yet they only got two runs and were the result of balks.

The Reds only got four hits and perfect fielding prevented runs.

Some timely batting and Cannell's three bagger helped matters out for the Tenneyites.

Tenney sent his team to the bat first in the second game, which was something new and caused some comment; and Umpire Johnstone gave Corcoran his base for Moran interfering with him while batting, which put him in bad repute with the fans.

AMERICANS TO MEET FRENCH TENNIS STARS

Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, July 13.—Nominations have been made in the International lawn tennis tourney. The American nominations are: Holcombe Ward and W. J. Clothier for the singles and Ward and Beals C. Wright for the doubles. H. E. Brookes and A. F. Wilding for the singles and A. W. Dunlop and Brookes are the Australian nominations. Austria sent in C. Von Wessely and R. Kinzl for both singles and doubles, while France also put in Decugis and Germot for both singles and doubles.

In the matches between America and France to-day Ward will meet Germot, France's second man, and Clothier will pair off with Decugis, the top man from "oui-oui" land.

Brookes will play Hinzl and Wilding will meet Von Wessely in the matches between Australia and Austria.

To-morrow, in the doubles, Ward and Wright vs. Decugis and Germot and Brooks and Dunlop vs. Hinzl and Von Wessely will be the order.

LUSH SIGNS A LONG CONTRACT WITH OLD ELI

Special to the Boston American.

NEW HAVEN, July 13.—Billy Lush, the former Cleveland Club left fielder, who coached the victorious Yale nine this season, has appended his signature to a three years' contract. Captain Morgan Bowman offered the contract to Lush, and he affixed his signature with alacrity.

The salary that Lush will receive is a substantial raise over that which he was receiving with Cleveland. However, it is not as large as he was offered by the Highlanders if he would forsake college baseball coaching and take Pat Dougherty's place in left field.

This new turn of affairs means two things: That Yale is the first team to retain a professional baseball coach all season, and it practically means that Lush will not return to the "pro" diamond again.

STEVENS BUYS TRACK.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., July 13.—The Woonsocket Trotting Park has been transferred to the control of Frank E. Stevens by the Woonsocket Trotting Park Company, which has had a lease several years. Stevens has announced races for July 25, 26, 27, 28.

YANKEE FREAK MOTOR BOATS TO RACE FOR FOREIGN CUP

NEW YORK, July 13.—Two little American motor-boats, pigmies compared with those they will meet, are going to try to bring the Harmsworth Cup to America. They are W. Gould Brokaw's Challenger and E. R. Thomas's Dixie.

The famous British International trophy they are to try for was given by Sir Alfred Harmsworth, and is an open challenge cup. It was won last year by the French boat Trefle a Quatre, which was given the race, though beaten by the Napier Minor, because the latter had not been properly entered.

The first race this year is fixed for September 11, and will be held in the Day of Arcachon, France, about thirty-five miles south of Bordeaux.

Trial Heats Necessary.

The conditions of this race permit three boats from each country to try for the trophy. So much interest is centred in the contest abroad that England and France have each entered more than their quota, and elimination trials will be necessary to select representatives.

The race is limited to boats that do not exceed forty feet on the water line, but there is no limit to the amount of power that may be used, and the foreigners have resorted to enormous engines. The Dubonnet, which won the Prince of Monaco Cup, has engines of 300 horse-power, and the Brooke I., built in England, has the same power.

England is going to make a supreme effort to regain the trophy. The Napier II., one of the British representatives, has two huge engines of eighty horse-power each, and she is perfectly flat-bottomed, so that she is driven over the surface of the water instead of through it. This boat is built entirely of steel.

Both the Challenger and the Dixie have shown near the mile-in-two-minutes' mark, and from their time records seem to have a chance to bring the cup over here.

The start will be a flying one and the distance will be from thirty to thirty-five nautical miles. There will be no sharp turns and every boat will be put on its merits of straight running. The distance is suitable to both American boats. But the question is whether their 150 horse-power engines can drive their smooth bodies as fast as their rivals which have twice their power.

Yankee Freaks.

These two Yankee motor boats have been called "freaks" over here, but they are models compared to the queer foreign craft. The Challenger has proved her worth in both Northern and Southern waters and to-day is queen of Yankee high-speed boats.

The Dixie met with an accident last Tuesday in the Indian Harbor races at Greenwich, where she made her first appearance, but her trials have shown her to be a wonder. One of the conditions upon which her owner agreed to accept her was that she should develop sufficient speed to beat the Challenger, and Clinton H. Crane, who had designed the latter, presumably was sure of what he was about when he agreed to that condition for the Dixie.

The big powerful foreign boats are sure to show remarkable speed in the coming race, but as big as their engines are they will know they have been in a race when they meet the two little Yankee flyers.

CHAMPS SIGN ARMBRUSTER AS CATCHER

By Boston American Leased Wire.

CHICAGO, July 13.—Because of the illness of Arthur McGovern, the former Lowell, New England League catcher, and the poor throwing wing of "Duke" Farrell, the Boston Champs have signed a new man in the person of Charles A. Armbruster, of the New London, Connecticut League team. He will join the Boston team in St. Louis.

Ever since they arrived in this city the Champs have been on the lookout for a new catcher to help them in their arduous trip, which is chuck full of double-headers. Negotiations were opened up with the New London people, and after a little dickering over the price, which is reported to be $1,750, the Champs concluded to purchase the release of the minor leaguer.

Armbruster is twenty-four years old, weighs 180 pounds and is 5 feet 9 inches tall. He is a good backstop and can hit fairly well. He was born in Cincinnati, and played semi-professional ball until he joined the Brooklyns in 1902, but was let go to New London, where he has caught since, because the Superbas already had Fuller and Farrell.

BRESNAHAN IS ASSAULTED BY ARTHUR DEVLIN

NEW YORK, July 13.—Is there friction in the New York National League baseball camp? If there is, that may be the reason why the Giants have slumped so badly of late.

Earlier in the season the Giants had a very big lead for the flag, but now just a little over six games separate them from the Pirates, and, considering the fact that the Pirates have many games left with such clubs as Brooklyn and Boston, who are regarded cinches, while New York has most of its games with the strong Western clubs, this makes it look bad for New York.

How great the contrast from their playing earlier in the season, when they won games at will and batted and ran bases like Indians.

Of late they have slumped in all departments of the game, and on their last Western trip the best they could do was to break even.

There must be some reason for this. Probably it is explained in the little incident which happened at the game yesterday, when Roger Bresnahan, catcher, and Arthur Devlin, third-baseman, got into an altercation and the latter struck "Bressy" in the face. Only timely interference prevented a disgraceful fight. Dissension is said to be strongly rooted in the team, and that if it is not eradicated immediately, New York will never win the pennant.

COLLEGIAN DENIES A. A. U. CHARGE

NEW YORK, July 13.—The disqualification of Frank R. Castleman, the hurdler, by the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U., has called forth from the athlete a reply denying that he is a professional. Castleman says that he played baseball at Paul Smith's, but only because he was up at the Summer resort, employed as a bell boy. Castleman explains that he has had to work his way through college and that he took employment every Summer. While at Paul Smith's, where many college men go to work, Castleman played on the baseball team because he liked to play the game. He denies that he received money for playing baseball, and says that the A. A. U. has acted with haste out of all decency in announcing the disqualification.

Whether the excuse will be accepted by John Steil, chairman of the Registration Committee, is of course unknown. There is strong likelihood that it will be. At the same time, should Castleman be disqualified, it will injure athletics at Colgate greatly. The hurdler is track team captain at the up-State institution, and his influence has brought out some good men. If he should be disqualified, it would take the keen edge off competition up there, and athletics would feel the loss.

Local athletes are wondering if the A. A. U. can be serious in its announced intention of disqualifying man who fail to compete at meetings in which they enter. The cases of men who cannot get off from work, as they had expected, on the day of the games; of men who receive a sudden injury, or who have to go out of town on business, all being supposed, would result in the disqualifications of the men in such cases who did not appear to compete. Such a regulation is considered farcical by the competing athletics.

COPPERS ON DIAMOND.

The Cambridge coppers and those of the Meridian street station, East Boston, will cross bats at the Wood Island Park grounds to-day.

This baseball game is expected to be most interesting, as every day during the past week the Noddle Islanders, under Coach "Felix" Crawford and Captain Bill Jacobs, have practised good and hard.

TO MEET FAST WALPOLE NINE

The E. Frank Lewis baseball team of Lawrence, Mass., will journey to Walpole on Saturday, July 15, to play their annual game with the strong Walpole nine.

Great interest is being shown in the coming game, not only in Walpole, but in the neighboring towns, owing to the fact that the team from Lawrence represents the large wool scouring establishment of E. Frank Lewis, who was formerly located in Walpole, but transferred his business to Lawrence some years ago.

The Lawrence team is composed of New England League and strong semi-professional players, while the Walpole team consists principally of local players, who have been putting up a very fast game this season, having already defeated many of the strongest semi-professional teams.

McGrady and Turner will be in the points for the Lawrence team, while Walpole, with Riley and Gray as the battery, look for victory.

A large delegation from Lawrence will accompany their team, and indications already point to the largest attendance of the season being present.

FERGUSON IS TRAINING HARD

The feeling that Sandy Ferguson will put it on Jack Johnson at the Douglas A. C. next Tuesday night grows stronger as those who have seen the Chelsea iceman fight know that when he is right that he is a match for any man in the country, and for the present Sandy is tending to business and seems to be in earnest, which the fans relish.

Sandy is perfecting his knockout punch down at Revere Beach, boxing with big Bob Armstrong, who is something of a scrapper himself, as he has faced the best of the big fellows, and he is just the right person for Sandy to train with.

Ferguson knows that he will be passed up if he fails to come to the front in this match and it is a chance for the future if he wants to bid for the championship in the heavyweight class.

A win over Johnson would give him the privilege of dictating to Marvin Hart, who seems to be in the limelight just now without any particular reason.

BOXING BOUTS AT WOONSOCKET

Special to the Boston American.

WOONSOCKET, R. I., July 13.—The Woonsocket Comets' baseball team will conduct a boxing carnival in the Opera House next Monday evening. Captain Bill Daly of Boston will be master of ceremonies. The events include a wrestling bout between Herbert Hartley of Lineyville and Sam Perry of England, six-round bout between Young McCarthy of Providence and "Kid" Callahan of New York city at 122 pounds, six-round bout between Paul Hines of Providence and Peter Nash of Wanskuck at 133 pounds, and a ten-round bout between Al Delmont of Medford and Eddie Janson of Providence.

COLUMBIA Y. C.'S FINE PROGRAM

The Columbia Yacht Club has arranged a number of interesting events for the rest of the Summer, which are as follows: Ladies' Day, basket party to Grape Island; August 27, ladies' basket party to Grape Island; July 15, special afternoon cruise, followed in the evening by a dance; next month a cruise will be called by the commodore, for which the commodore will offer several cups, date and destination decided later; August 5, inter-club race under the auspices of the South Boston Yacht Club.

BAN EXPECTS A BANNER YEAR

Special to the Boston American.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 13.—Byron Bancroft Johnson, president of the American League, has arrived here. Johnson says his visit has nothing to do with official business.

Johnson predicts a record-breaking season for the American League. The attendance in the eight cities has been far above expectations and exceeds that of former years.

"I thought it would be a long time before last season's record was equalled," said he, "but it fades into insignificance when compared to the present showing. In the combined circuit the increase is now more than 200,000, with prospects that it will be far greater before the schedule is played out."

GOODMAN AFTER LEWIS AGAIN

Kid Goodman arrived in the Hub to-day, after having been defeated by Young Erne at Philadelphia Monday night.

"I acknowledge that I was beaten," said Goodman, "but not by a very great margin. If the bout had gone a longer distance I would have won easily, as Erne showed evidences of tiring as the bout wore on. I would like to get another shy at Harry Lewis, to show the fans that I merited the decision I got over him on the Fourth."

BIG CONTEST FOR PACE MEN

The matching of James Moran, Menus Bedell and William Stinson for a twenty-five mile motor-paced race at the Revere board track next Saturday night was a good piece of work, for the hottest kind of a race is bound to result. The three men are all hard pluggers, big men and strong. They are capable of a gruelling contest, and every one is a fighter of the first water.

The trio are at work at the Revere track, doing the hardest kind of training, for each realizes that he will require his best speed and endurance in the coming race.

Bedell is out with blood in his eye, for he wants to score in front of the Boston race followers. He claims, and with justice, that nothing but the accident prevented him from winning the race at the Beach last Saturday night, and intends that there shall be no "ifs" about his riding next Saturday night.

TITLED WOMEN OF BRITAIN WIN FAME AS WRITERS

Brilliant Authors Abound in the Peerage

DUCAL novelists, poets, playwrights and writers are now almost as well known in England as those without titles. The day when the great nobility was content with the role of patron of literature has long since passed away.

Many great ladies have won fame in literature, as well as in other fields, and their own beauty but adds to the charm of their stories and poems.

Women of high degree have been serious rivals to the men for years.

The Duchess of Sutherland has published a really striking story entitled "One Hour and the Next." The "Capriccios" of the Duchess of Leeds is one of the best collections of short stories written in recent years.

Lady Warwick, who in addition to writing constantly on those subjects nearest her heart, has given to the world an excellent account of "Warwick Castle and Its Earls."

The Hon. Mrs. Alfred Lyttelton has published a novel and produced a play, "Warp and Woof," the latter presenting an entirely new social problem. All this is in addition to her work as a political hostess and philanthropist.

The pioneer of titled women journalists is Lady Violet Greville, who contributes a weekly column to more than one paper, and is one of the best writers on every branch of feminine sport.

Lady Margaret Sackville is making an enviable reputation with her verses, and the young Countess of Cromartie combines poesy with song writings, and each is of high quality.

A charming writer, better known in Ireland and in Roman Catholic America than in England, is Lady Gilbert. She interprets the romance and deep feeling of her countrymen and countrywomen as few writers have known how to do. The most popular of her works is "Nanno."

Lady Jersey has distinguished herself as a writer of children's stories. Thus it is seen that the divine fire has not spared those of high degree among the English nobility, and the list is being steadily added to.

SEVEN TITLED AUTHORS.

The large centre picture is Lady Voilet Greville, pioneer of titled women journalists.

In the upper left-hand corner is the Hon. Mrs. Alfred Lyttelton, author of "Warp and Woof."

In the upper right-hand corner is the Countess of Cromartie, poet and novelist.

The square photograph at the right is Lady Margaret Sackville, poet.

The square picture at the left is Lady Gilbert (Rosa Mulholland) author of "Nanno."

The small pictures at the bottom are Lady Jersey, writer of children's stories, and the Duchess of Leeds, author of "Capriccios."

RICE AND PEACH MOULD

PUT a quart of milk in a pan on the fire, well wash four ounces of rice, when the milk boils sprinkle in. Put the lid on the pan and simmer very gently till the milk and rice are thick, add about two ounces of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of vanilla and three sheets of gelatine melted.

Rinse out a plain mould with cold water. Place a firm half of a canned peach on the bottom of the mould with the cut side down, and arrange a circle of glace cherries round.

Carefully put in a layer of rice. Enough room should be left for a line of peaches round the mould. Arrange the pieces of peach round, pressing them on with the cut side next the mould. If they are large cut them in halves. Pack the mould carefully with rice and leave it till set. Dip into warm water, and turn the contents on to a pretty dish.

Every Girl May Be Sweet and Charming

By Beatrice Fairfax

GIRLS, I wonder if you half appreciate the great privilege which is yours if you choose to make the most of it.

I mean the privilege of being sweet, charming girls.

I once heard a young man say that of all the nice things in the world a nice girl was the nicest.

Of course every girl would like to be pretty. Beauty is a great and powerful gift.

Unfortunately, all girls can't be beautiful.

But they can all be nice if they go the right way about it.

And even the beauties won't get on very well if they have no charm save that of looks.

To be a thoroughly nice girl means to keep your heart and mind pure and sweet.

Innocence is not ignorance, and there are many sordid facts in life which cannot be overlooked.

But dwell as lightly on them as possible and do not form the habit of seeing double and hidden meanings in all that is said.

Behave yourselves so as to command the respect of your men friends.

If you make vulgar remarks or tell improper stories you will always find a certain class of men will laugh at them, but when your back is turned they will laugh at you and speak disrespectfully of you.

The right kind of men won't laugh at the stories nor ever care to meet you again.

It is in your own hands to make men worship or despise you.

If you are sweet and gentle and womanly, every man you meet will look on you as a precious being to be shielded from the slightest breath of disrespect or roughness.

But if you are loud and rough and unwomanly the men will show you but scant courtesy.

You must hold yourself a little in reserve, be dignified.

Never forget that familiarity breeds contempt.

Never use profane language. It is not only irreverent, but in exceedingly poor taste.

No matter what your surroundings may be never let the men with whom you come in contact forget that you are a woman.

Don't intrude yourself and claim special privileges on account of your sex, but hold yourself so that they will treat you with the deference due your womanhood.

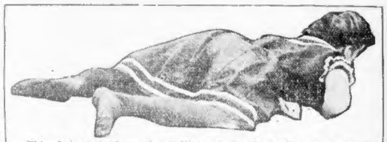
Be gentle in your way of speaking.

Gentleness will bring you twice as many friends as roughness will, and if you have a point to gain try the gentle method first.

If you train your mind to be gentle and kindly it will show in your face, and even if nature has not given you a straight nose and curly hair you will have the beauty of expression, which is quite as desirable as beauty of feature.

Try and remember this little sermon, girls, and see if it isn't in you to be, as the young man expressed it, that best of all nice things—a nice girl.

You Can Learn to Swim in One Week



This photograph shows the position at the beginning of the breast stroke, just before "the kick."

Fourth Easy Lesson in Series Written By an Expert

By William Rowe

(Swimming Instructor at L Street Bath)

LESSON IV.

THERE are a great many swimmers who can swim "just a little." This is because they have only acquired the rudiments and have not kept on practicing until they have mastered a good, firm, swift stroke.

If at the end of the third lesson the beginner does not thoroughly understand the arm stroke and leg movement, the fourth lesson should be a repetition of the third.

But when the learner has sensed these strokes and the necessity of keeping them in unison, she can go learn fancy strokes and other feats, even if she has not fully mastered swimming, for she can become an expert only by continual practice.

The fourth lesson should be the learning of the side stroke. This will help the beginners to rest the muscles.

The side stroke is nearly similar to the breast stroke.

The beginner rolls slightly over on her left side with the left arm lower than the right in order to make the sweep.

Just as in the breast stroke the first position should be taken with the hands in a horizontal position with thumbs placed together against the chest.

Then the semi-circle is described in exactly the same manner with the left arm at a lower angle than the right. The leg movement is the same as when the swimmer is using the breast stroke.

This side stroke will rest the muscles, and will aid the learner to feel at home in the water. Diving should not be attempted until one is pretty well advanced in the art of swimming.

HOW TO MAKE GOOD PICNIC SANDWICHES

By Grace Elliston.

SANDWICHES carelessly made are spoiled. They are uninviting to look at and certainly not good to taste. To make them successfully one must be sure that they have the proper things to start with. Good bread and butter are essentials, and whatever filling is put in must be of the best.

The most troublesome part of making sandwiches is cutting the bread, but that can be made a very simple matter if you are careful to get bread in just the right condition.

If it is too fresh it will crumble and be hard to cut, and if it is too stale the taste of the sandwiches is spoiled. Bread two days old is just about right, and it should be of a close grain.

It is better to spread the butter on the bread before you cut it.

When the bread is all cut and the filling prepared it is a small matter to finish the sandwiches.

Spread one slice with whatever the sandwich is to be filled with and place another, butter side down, on top of it, pressing them tightly together.

Then pile them on top of each other. When they are all done, trim off the crusts and the rough edges and cut in two. This will make reasonably sized sandwiches.

During the Summer, when one goes on so many trips and picnics, nothing is as satisfactory to take for light refreshment as a few sandwiches.

To make them begin first by mixing whatever kind of filling is to go between the slices of bread.

If it is ham, chop it up with a meat chopper till it is almost as fine as paste. In this way you get both the lean and the fat of the meat, and it is not so difficult to eat.

Sardines should be taken out of the tin as free from oil as possible, the skins taken off and the small bones removed. Then with a fork they should be smashed into pieces and lemon juice squeezed over them.

For chicken sandwiches the meat should all be cut off the bones and chopped in the same way as the ham.

Cheese sandwiches are very good, made either with a thin slice of cheese and some mustard or the cheese spread in a thick paste, with a light sprinkling of red pepper over it.

SCARLET LIES

By X and Z, Authors of Married to Mystery

CHAPTER CXXIV.—Continued.

"ANYHOW, now you know everything; and, if you like, you might tell Mr. Armstrong. If he has no objection I should very much like to go and see Gerrard of Mulberry street about the affair, which, under the circumstances, I certainly think is a matter for the police. I am making inquiries about Braine. I think he has made a big mistake this time. Send me a cable if you have any suggestions to make."

Mary read and re-read the letter. It frightened her tremendously. All her old fears came back—the fear for her father's name and honor.

At first she thought of cabling Dick Menzies herself, without referring to her father, and telling him on no account to communicate with the police, or to do anything at all until she had seen him; but, on second thoughts, she determined to show the letter to her father and act on his superior advice. In this she was wise.

CHAPTER CXXV.

The Blow Averted.

ARMSTRONG had steeled himself during the past few weeks for anything, even for the worst, that could possibly happen. He fully realized his danger, and he did not shirk it. The Damocles sword that hung over his head did not fall, but he never knew the moment that the single hair would snap. It might be to-day or to-morrow, or weeks and months hence, but fall sooner or later assuredly it would. Therefore, like a calm, hard-headed business man that he was, he made every preparation for the reception of the inevitable catastrophe.

All the time he was laughing and amusing his guests on board the Seafoam he was planning out in his mind his preparations, seeing that his papers were all in order, leaving written instructions as to all his various investments and securities, writing letters to his lawyers; in fact, doing all that a man might do who knew that his death was imminent.

He made a codicil to his will, which was witnessed by two of the officers of the Seafoam, and he sent it to his solicitors, keeping a duplicate himself, and, in short, did everything that he possibly could to mitigate the effect of the blow on his wife and daughter.

When That Blow Fell.

And as a man can become accustomed, and almost callous of imminent death, Armstrong grew to regard the inevitable catastrophe with philosophic calm, though there were times when a great panic of fear surged through him, and he felt that he was not brave enough to face the exposure and the disgrace, and that by far the better way would be for him to take his life, and so, at least, save his wife and daughter from the greater disgrace which his continuing to live would surely entail.

But there was always hope, and Armstrong clung to the straw of hope desperately, like a drowning man. Many things might happen. Perhaps Fergus Braine would stand by him; perhaps Morley Darch would think better of his cruel resolve. Then, again, there was Dick Menzies. That was indeed a great relief to him. If Morley Darch's idea was merely to gain Mary for his wife, and for which end he was prepared to do any desperate thing, surely, if Mary were another man's wife, he would see that nothing was to be gained. So he argued with himself, and sought comfort, if any there were, in that thought.

So it was that when Mary sought him in his cabin, and asked him to read Dick Menzies's letter, he was, in a sense, prepared for the worst. He read it carefully, and the girl, watching him closely, did not observe a single sign on her father's face that the news caused him any particular alarm or surprise.

"What am I to do father?" she asked, when he looked up and handed her back the letter.

"Do Nothing,

my child," he said, gravely. "Leave it to me. I will send Dick a wire at once, and write him to-night."

"But it is serious," she said. "Oh, father, do trust me, like you used to do! What can this wretch, Morley Darch, do to you?"

"Nothing, Mary," he answered, with a reassuring smile—"nothing, I asure you, my dear. So please don't look so frightened and woebegone. Cheer up, little maiden! Come, you know what we arranged long ago. We must maintain our bold attitude." He laughed, but his laughter struck the girl as being hollow and very mirthless. "I have defied Darch. I am not going to budge an inch. Let him do his worst. One thing I know, and that is that my little daughter is, and always shall be, safe from him."

"But what about you, father?" she asked, tremulously.

"Oh, I shall be all right," answered Armstrong. "Don't you trouble about me, my pet. Trust your old father to look out for himself. Now run away and be cheerful, and write a nice, loving letter to your Dick, and tell him that I have read his letter and am communicating with him."

"Yes, father," she said obediently; "but won't you tell me what you are going to say to Dick?"

Armstrong's eyes blazed with such anger as the girl had never seen in human eyes before, or was ever likely to again.

"I am sending him this cable," he said, in a voice that was hoarse with feelings but half under control. And he sat down then and there and wrote the following, which he showed to Mary:

"Captain Menzies, Atheneum, New York:

'Mary has shown me you letter. Do just what you wish concerning Darch. I fear nothing. Advise you have him and Braine arrested for blackmail. Am returning New York at once. Armstrong."

"Oh, father," exclaimde Mary, smiling through her tears, "do you really mean that?"

"Of course I do," answered Armstrong. "It is the only course open. We'll bring matters to an issue one way or the other. I've had enough of this. Now let the scoundrels do their worst. They shall find that Bob Armstrong can stand up to them and isn't afraid to face the music. There, my little Mary, now run away and keep your courage up. "I'm going to send this off at once and then write fully to Dick."

Armstrong was as good as his word. He dispatched the cable, and felt much easier in his mind, and he felt still more easy after he had written a long and exhaustive letter to Dick Menzies, telling him in plain, uncomprimising language the whole story of Gunter and Morley Darch's blackmail, keeping back absolutely nothing.

"As you are going to marry my daughter," he wrote, "I feel it only right that you should know the facts. Do as you like. I cannot grovel, because I don't feel guilty. I lied. I perjured myself to save Lawrie Gunter's life, because I knew—and I still know—

That He Is Innocent.

Please do not forget, Dick, that neither my wife nor Mary know what I have now told you, and they must never know, unless—well, the 'unless' means that all the world will know.

"See Gerrard by all means; do all you can, all you feel called upon to do; and never for a moment forget that, as far as Morley Darch is concerned, I am adamant. I seek no revenge. Such curs as he do not deserve a thought from an honest man. Let him do what he chooses.

"If what I have told you, Dick," he added, "makes any difference to your love for Mary, I shall be sorry, but I and she, too, must abide by it.

"I look forward to seeing you and giving you a fuller explanation than I possibly can in a letter. It may be, however, that that will be denied me. I am prepared for any eventuality. I can only hope and pray that the final blow may not fall until I have been able to see you and the police in an independent capacity. Ever yours most sincerely,

ROBERT ARMSTRONG."

It was a brave letter to write and worthy of the man whose heart was like a lion's, and who dared the worst that could possibly happen to a man rather than give way a second time to the cowardly weakness which had caused him to sacrifice his daughter to the blackmailing scoundrel Darch in order to save his good name among men.

"Whatever can possibly happen to me," said Armstrong to himself, "can never be a sufficient punishment for the unforgivable wrong I then did."

CHAPTER CXXVI.

The Marseilles Incident.

TUESDAY saw a marked change for the better in the weather, and, all being well, Captain MacAndrew proposed to sail early the next morning.

Armstrong talked the matter over thoroughly with his captain, and left him carte blanche to do what he thought best. For himself, he reluctantly had to leave his guests and go to London.

Pressing business, which would admit of no delay, was his excuse. Only Mary knew how pressing that business was. Indeed, Armstrong had confided his plans to her.

"I want," he said, "to get back to New York before I am expected. Once more alone, I can travel, as it were, incognito, which may mean a very great deal. I shall see Dick as soon as possible, and, all being well, meet you all at Port Cleno. Meantime, I don't want anybody to know that I am not sailing with the Seafoam. You understand? I have spoken to mother, and she quite agrees with me. The Seafoam's movements are fully chronicled, and just for the next few days I want to be able to go where I like and do what I want without it all being in the next day's newspapers."

TO BE CONTINUED.

GOOD TASTE IN JEWELRY

USE and not abuse is the main point to be considered in the wearing of jewels and trinkets.

Some stones are far more suitable for evening wear than others, so it is hardly appropriate to wear them on the morning dress or at breakfast. No woman who possesses fine diamonds should think of thus displaying them, but they are too often inclined to the belief that the imitation stones, being merely imitations, may thus be worn, and it is not uncommon to see a woman with paste studs twinkling in her ears at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Another point to be observed is the proper use of trinkets. For instance, a brooch should never be used unless it actually serves to fasten some article of wearing apparel together, or to hold down some of the innumerable folds of a lace jabot or cravat.

To sprinkle the front of a dress or shirt waist with brooches of several shapes and sizes is senseless and in exceedingly bad taste. It gives the impression that the owner is anxious that the general public should see and admire all the trinkets she possesses.

Don't wear all the jewelry you own simply because you have it, and don't wear jewels that do not match in style or color.

It is never good taste to wear on the same occasion a mixture of precious stones or metals which give an ostentatious appearance to the simplest costumes. Thus a silver necklet, a gold brooch and an oxidized bracelet are not infrequently loaded on all at once, and the individual beauty of each is entirely lost.

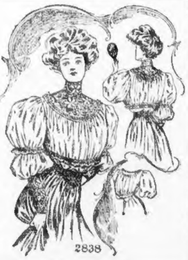
Nowadays few people remember the emblematic significance originally attached to the wearing of jewelry.

Ornamental jewelry to be worn in the hair should be sparkling, but in no way heavy.

That most objectionable style of wearing jingling bangles or chatelaines renders their wearer a burden to herself as well as those who have the misfortune to be in her company.

Hearst's Boston American Pattern

A Stunning Shirred Effect



No. 2,838—It often happens that the most becomingly dressed woman is she who fashions her own gowns. It is indeed a great credit to the American woman of to-day that, with all her strenuous life, she still retains the ancestral art of plying the needle. One of the most modish of the new Spring waists is shown here, and it will win the admiration of beauty-loving women everywhere because of its possibilities. For the slender woman the shirred bolero effect will supply fulness to the bust, and the puff sleeve breadth to narrow shoulders. A soft veiling in lavender or yellow, with ecru lace and crushed girdle of a dark-hued chiffon velvet or taffeta, will develop this model most becomingly. For a medium size, 6¼ yards of 27-inch material are necessary.

Pattern No. 2,838 is cut in five sizes from 32 to 40 inches bust.

Send 10 cents to obtain this pattern, postpaid, and the size, name and address to HEARST'S BOSTON AMERICAN PATTERN DEPT., P. O. Box 230, Boston, Mass.

Can We Punish Respectable Crooks?

Hardly—Especially If VERY RESPECTABLE Crooks Are Back of Them

The government collects statistics of the crops, valuable and important to farmers.

These statistics are very valuable also to the speculators in Wall street that are permitted by our stupid laws to gamble in the necessities of life.

One of the government statisticians, named Holmes, has been caught giving cotton statistics in advance to the Cotton Exchange gamblers, getting his part of the money.

There is a demand that the man be punished criminally. He helped some gambling swindlers to rob a good many people, and there is a feeling in the public mind that Mr. Roosevelt's administration should prosecute him criminally.

We have no doubt that Mr. Roosevelt would like to do this. He has no patience with small, mean thieves.

But, as usual, there is a question whether the man CAN be prosecuted successfully.

It is the old story: "Little criminals are easily caught, where big ones break through the net."

Behind this petty statistician of the government stand a collection of very "respectable gentlemen" of the Wall street gambling type.

If their tool should be prosecuted and imprisoned, it might be necessary to imprison them also.

Do you think that is likely to happen? HARDLY.

"DEPEW TO THE BAR!" Shall That Be the Cry in the Criminal Court?

Nothing more is needed to bring Chauncey M. Depew, Senator of the United States, before the bar of criminal justice, charged with a penitentiary offence, than that an alert and determined District Attorney should present to a grand jury the Senator's own testimony in the investigation of the Equitable Society.

Depew's yearly salary of $20,000 for undefined legal services is trivial in the great volume of graft.

His ready acceptance of $25 for each directors' meeting, whether he attended it or not, was shared by the other self-sacrificing financiers working for the dear policy holders.

But the Senator's description of the part played by him in foisting upon the insurance company the property of the now bankrupt Depew Improvement Company is enough by itself to call the attention of the District Attorney to his actions.

He was a director of the Equitable. He was also heavily interested in the improvement company—partly by direct purchase, partly by loans made to his associates on their stock.

The improvement company was embarrassed in 1901.

At that time the Insurance Department of the State appraised its value at $150,000.

Mr. Depew, acting in that "general capacity" which he thinks justifies his annual retainer of $20,000, wrote to the department asking a new and higher appraisal.

The reason for this request was quickly made apparent.

The Depew Improvement Company appeared before the Equitable, asking a loan of $250,000.

A complaisant appraiser in the employ of the company, recognizing on which side his bread was buttered, appraised the property at $393,750.

The loan was made.

Senator-Director-Borrower Depew voted that the loan should be made to his company. Moreover, he agreed to guarantee the loan to the society.

When the company went bankrupt HE REPUDIATED HIS GUARANTEE.

The company did go bankrupt. The Equitable foreclosed, and the Depew property on which Depew had loaned $250,000 of the society's funds, brought $50,000.

The actual loss to the society is still greater, for the loan, with accrued interest, now represents over $275,000.

BY LETTING DEPEW DEAL WITH DEPEW IN THIS FRIENDLY FASHION THE SOCIETY LOST $225,000. WHO GOT IT?

To recapitulate:

Depew as Equitable director voted to lend Depew as borrower $250,000 on property officially appraised at $150,000.

Depew as borrower guaranteed the loan and as borrower and director repudiated his guarantee.

The society lost $225,000 by the transaction.

United States Senators from Oregon and Kansas are now under conviction of misdemeanors which are trivial in comparison to this colossal offence of Depew's.

Is the State of New York going to let this juggler with the moneys of widows and orphans go scot-free?

WHO KNOWS THIS OLD-TIME SONG?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

If possible, will you kindly inform me through the columns of your esteemed paper where I can obtain the words of an old song? I remember hearing my father sing it to me forty years ago when I was a child. I cannot give the name of the song, but perhaps one stanza, the only one I know, will give it identity.

Upon Long Island's sea-girt shore,
Many an hour I've whiled away
Listening to the breakers' roar
That washed the beach at Rockaway.

Doubtless some of your readers can supply the name of the author.

SAYS "KEEP THE CHINESE OUT"

W. R. Hearst, Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

A caricature in a recent number of the BOSTON AMERICAN representing lax discriminating under the "Chinese Exclusion Act," reveals the object of this scheme, and the mere use of words could not so clearly define the President's purpose in this matter. The fear of a Chinese boycott in trade is a pitiable excuse for modifying the Immigration Commissioner's vigilance. Nearly ninety per cent. of our trade in China has been secured since the enactment of this treaty. Was it that old party leaders were not in accord, as at present, and the fears of losing the Republican delegation in Congress from the Pacific states served to enforce the exclusion act in the past. We all know that the thretened boycott is false, but we all know that there is a forced demand for help to be used in crushing the labor union power, and there is the pith of the order for a relaxation of vigilance by the Immigration Commissioners. But we who stand at the work-bench will never submit to the impoverishing competition of fifty cents per day and more rats.

Sing a song of robbery by men in places high,
Several hundred millions raked from a pie;
When the pie was opened the birds all took to wing,
Now are they not a pretty lot? (In the background note Sing Sing.)

Live in the Present; the Past is Dea

By Rev. Thomas B. Gregory

"TEACH me to forget" i a prayer that should be made much oftene than it is.

Multitudes of people are miserable and quite unfitted for taking any useful part in life, simply because they are forever thinking of the past.

Last year, or maybe many years ago, they made mistakes, and they cannot forget them.

A long time ago misfortunes overtook them, and the memory of the ill-luck has been with them ever since.

Like a ghost, the shadow of the misstep or bad luck follows them everywhere and haunts them incessantly. Where they go that shadow goes. It gives them no rest. For thinking o that shadow they cannot enjoy themselves. From thinking of that shadow they are incapacitated for any form o brain endeavor.

It goes without saying that it is great misfortune to be thus situated.

If they could only say to the past "Good-by," and see it sink out of their consciousness like a rock in the sea! If they could only blot out the memory of every one of those missteps and mistakes! If they could only get away forever from the gestures and grimaces of that terrible ghost!

They could then take hold of lif with a willing, hearty grip. There would then be a fair field and no handicaps. Then they could take an interest in things. Then they could accomplish something.

But the ghost! with its mockeries and incriminations! How it disheartens and discourages! How it plucks from the heart its valor and from the soul its peace!

But stop a minute and think!

The human being who never did what he ought not to have done, or left undone that which he ought to have done, is a pure myth.

What sense is there in lying back there with the dread accusations and reproaches?

You may sit in sackcloth and ashes until the undertaker comes for you, with your wretchedness piled up mountain high about you, but it will result in no good either to yourself or to the one you have wronged.

Get up and try to atone for the false step by taking the steps which shall be true.

If the wrong was a real one, meant by you to be such, make such amends for it as you can, and then forget all about it. Do the honorable, and then let the word be "Oblivion!"

On the other hand, if the wrong was not a real wrong, having been done ignorantly and without evil intent, then, by all means, cease to think of it.

What a blessing it would be if, at the close of each day, we could burn that day's records and begin the morrow with a clean page!

Into the West, along with the setting sun, should sink all the hates, a the regrets, all the failures of the closing day.

What if you did do something wron one, ten or twenty years ago, shoul the thought of it be permitted to mak you wretched and worthless to-day?

Forget it, and begin to-day to b true!

It is not by nursing old regret tha mistakes are to be rectified.

A truce to the ugly past!

Live in the present, which you ca make beautiful if you will.

Ingenuity Is Woman's Most Powerful Weapon

By Caroline

INGENUITY can usually be depended upon for winning against great odds.

The person whose mind works quickly and one who can use the material that he finds at hand is much better fitted for coping with trying and unexpected situations than one whose mind works well but slowly.

A quick-witted woman has a much better chance in the world than a whole company of men who are guided by precedent.

The tales of weak women outwitting strong men always stir a thrill in every other woman's breast.

One never tires of the stories of the brave Southern women in the Civil War, who by their quick and ready devices often saved not only their household belongings and food from the ravages of the Union soldiers, but whose brothers, cousins and sweethearts were often hidden almost in sight of the invaders.

We have no invading army to contend with at present, but ingenuity and quick wits are as much in demand as ever.

I have been much interested in th way that Mrs. Patrick J. Donohoe o Pittsburg stood up for her rights agains a gang of telephone men and policemen.

Telephone employes had a lively tim trying to erect poles in front of he property. They had scooped out si holes, when Mrs. Donohoe appeared o the scene. The woman dropped one o her children, Nora, into the first hole Bridget D., second; Patrick into th third; Michael crawled into the fourth and the fifth was taken by James.

"I dare you put one of your poles i on my little ones!" shouted Mrs. Donohoe. The challenge was taken, and th big pole was hauled up. The sky wa clear and the sun was shining, but despite this it began to rain. The policeman and workmen looked up and saw the cloud-burst coming from the nozzle of a hose which another child held with unerring aim.

The policeman had on his new uniform and ran. The workmen about the same moment thought they heard the 5 o'clock whistle blowing away off somewhere, and they likewise quit.

Mrs. Donohoe pulled up the children and with the help of her neighbors filled up the holes.

Ingenuity had won.

BUGVILLE EDITOR—Willie, climb up and throw this in the waste paper basket.

FLY—What a swelled head he must have to think he can wear a hat like that.

MRS. BUG—I don't believe in these long engagements. Why, those two have been keeping company fully five minutes.

MR. BUG—Just think of it! I'm lugging this thing along to keep us cool!

DO CHILDREN PLUCK FLOWERS THROUGH WANTONNESS?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

I see Mrs. McLean finds fault because children are not allowed to pick wild flowers in the public parks. She wants the opinion of others on the subject. Well, I think they might be allowed to pick daisies and dandelions or buttercups. But I would draw the line at that.

She says her little friends spent hour gathering a few wild violets only to hav them taken from her by an officer. think the officer did perfectly right. Wil violets are comparatively rare. The very fact that she spent hours gathering a few show that they are. Now the public parks are for the benefit of everybody, adults as well as children, and if children were allowed to pull such flowers as violets we should soon be deprived of the privilege of seeing a wild violet in the public parks.

As for children pulling flowers becaus they love them, that is not always th case. They pull them as often throug wantonness, or for something to keep them going as for anything else. Grown people do the same. They pull them and then throw them away the next minute. Buttercups and daisies will serve the same purpose. The children who are allowed to consider it a hardship to walk through the public parks without pulling flowers will by and by consider it a hardship to keep their hands off more valuable things.
